Life's pattern begins with three years

Life is a jigsaw puzzle
With most of the pieces missing;
Three years—time to put
A few in place for yourself
To form a pattern,
A pattern of your life.
A pattern of experiences
Enjoyed and remembered for years.
Carefree times dancing, singing,
Huddling at football games,
Both on the field
And in the stands.
Patterns of expression
Through the arts or drama;
Wherever you fit into place.
Patterns of competition;
For leadership roles, and
For that extra winning point.
A pattern of spirit and of caring;
About school, community, and
About the pattern of your life.

Pattern put together in, out of class

A pattern of learning
In school and out.
In—formulae, trivia,
And things of great consequence.
New ideas, old ideas,
Expounded and discarded.
Mazes of halls, of math, of minds.
People—new friends, old friends,
Teachers, young and old.
Panther patterns—victory, defeat,
And perhaps victory again.
Out—more people, known, unknown,
Wise and foolish.
The world; foreign but beckoning.
Exciting new lands, new faces,
New thoughts.
A pattern of being yourself
And no one else; the same
Inside and out; to know both.
To decide what is right and wrong
For yourself and no one else.
To form a pattern,
A pattern of your life.

THE STUDENT CENTER IS a favorite spot for Centralites to meet with friends to study or chat. After lunch, the area bustles with students enjoying a few free minutes before they return to class. Dances and mixers are held here throughout the year.

Spring festivities combine excitement, sadness

In May 1968, the junior class presented their prom, "Wear Your Love Like Heaven", which was held at the Indiana Roof. Joy Leimbach and Duke Hardy reigned as queen and king. During the intermission Rick Schaefer provided music by Donovan.

In Twelfth Night, the spring play, Becky McCann portrayed Viola, one of the sweetest and most wistful of Shakespeare's characters. Jay Mart as Sebastian, Dick Williams as Orsino, and Gayle Stahlhuth as Maria were also included in the comedy.

With the completion of their last day of school, seniors continued the tradition of throwing papers over the student center balcony, and began preparing for Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises. The Grad Dance was held at the Murat Temple.

work, travel

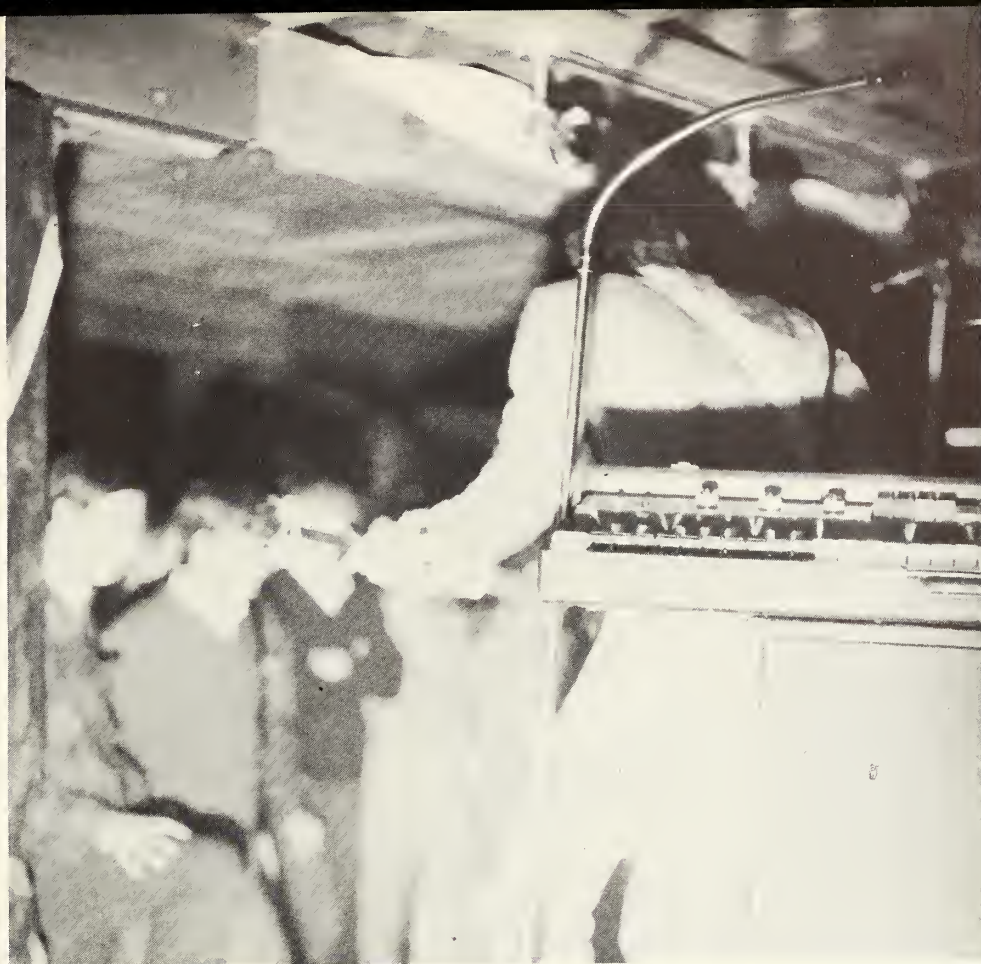

Summer provided a busy time for North Central students whether they were busy working, traveling, or relaxing.

Several students from North Central visited foreign countries on exchange or cultural education programs.

Local young people from North Central and other area high schools spent many summer hours rebuilding an old barn. The rebuilt barn was used as a youth center.

The largest driver's education program in Indiana was taught by 24 instructors led by General DeBard. Basic driving knowledge was taught during a four day period, followed by two weeks of actual driving experience.

Baseball games continued into summer, culminating with the state tournament. Football practice began in the late summer months in preparation for their fall grid battles.

SUMMER NIGHTS FOUND many area youths listening to such bands as Him Her and Them at the teen club, The Barn.

SUMMER PRACTICE of the football team was preparation for head to head contact.

STEERING THEIR WAY through the double stanchions to complete the skill tests, driver's education students accomplish their training during the summer months.

Musical, bonfire, play, dominate fall activities

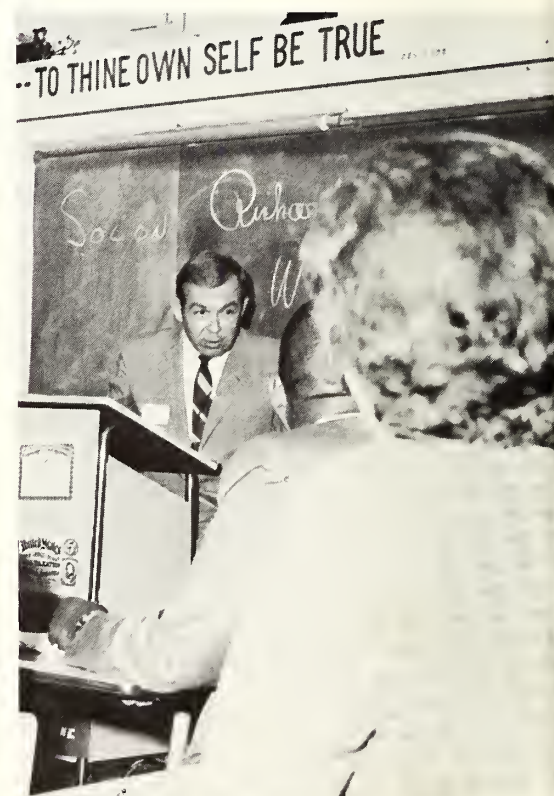

Drama and musical comedy highlighted the North Central stage during the fall. The fall play, "Inherit the Wind," presented the famous monkey trials of the 1920's. The music department staged "Half a Sixpence," the story of a poor English draper who inherits a fortune and falls in love with a sophisticated, high-class woman. George McKown, Katy Kreusser, and Sandy Donnell played in the leading roles.

Thirty senior girls displayed the latest fashions from Dorothy's to the music of the International Grapefruit during the Style Show. Also during the Family Jamboree, sleepshirts, tee-shirts, school jewelry, and other items were on sale in booths.

The class of '69 celebrated with a bonfire after their last football game. Doughnuts, hot dogs, and hot chocolate were served to warm up the cold night.

Confused parents wandered aimlessly through mazes of halls in attempt to recreate their children's daily schedules on Back-to-School Night on September 25.

ANSWERING QUESTIONS of interested parents Mr. Meek speaks to "back to school" crowds in the fall.

Homecoming

The 1968 Homecoming activities began with qualifications for the annual trike race. The victor was senior homeroom F 162, "Seigals Super Cyclers", setting a new time record. Team members included Susan Sanders, Linda Schwindler, Susan Schaefer, and Terry Schlossberg. A new addition to usual pep assembly was a group skit. North Central Panthers played a victorious game with the Kokomo Kats on Friday night. To add a colorful scene for halftime, the traditional float parade was presented. The five floats were "Weaver's Reducing Machine" by Mu Alpha Theta, "Ko-Ko Kats, Breakfast of Panthers" by Senior Class Council, "Panthers Whip Wildcats" by homerooms E 147 and E 149, "Panthers Bottle Katsup" by homerooms A 123, A 124, and H 199, and "No Mo' Kokomo Go Go" by homerooms E 142, E 144 and E 146. Last year's homecoming queen, Marty Youngquist, returned to crown Nancy Wrege. Crowning Gary Linder as King highlighted the dance, "Turnabout is Fair Play".

BRUCE KEREZMAN AND JOHN MACKEY take part in presenting the float created by three homerooms to a cheering crowd during the Homecoming game half time. This was the winning float in competition.

GOLF TEAM MEMBERS spent many spring and summer hours improving their game, playing at various courses throughout the city. Here, at Meridian Hills Country Club, Denny Dawson holds the flag while Jim Jobes putts. Gary Gant and Bob Koschmann look on while waiting for their turns to putt before continuing on their practice round.

JOGGING AROUND THE TRACK, the cross country team practices for one of its meets.

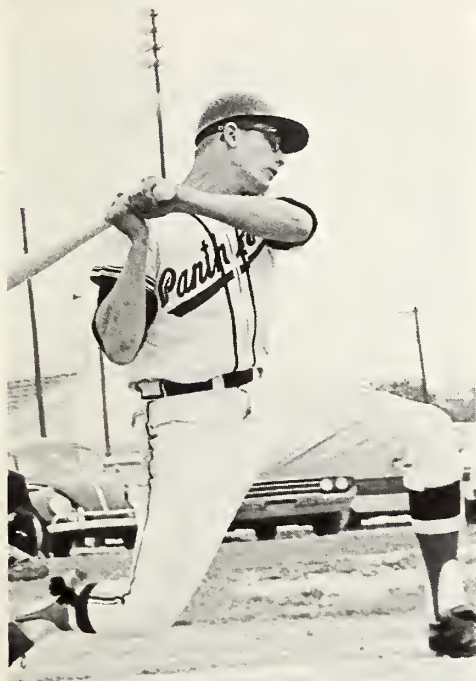

Sports offer enthusiasm, initiative, pep

All North Central athletic teams "socked it to 'em" by continuing their winning tradition. The football squad held the lines back for an impressive 8-2 record. Endurance and stamina brought the cross country team a second place in the state finals. Returning lettermen Gary Pittenger, Duke Hardy, Bill Vinton, and Rick Lash kept the spirit of the Panthers at a height. The tennis team retained their sectional crown at Lawrence Central. Aspirations of the state title inspired the wrestling squad to work as a unit. Gymnastics team captain Jack Harcourt led the team with impressive performances on the side-horse. The baseball team practiced daily for perfection of aim, pitch, and swing so important for excellence.

Play, dances, spirit brighten winter months

Despite inclement weather, Centralites livened up the winter with two dances, a play, and an abundance of school spirit. Student Council sponsored the Christmas dance "Midnight Snowfall." In February the drama department presented Winterset, a play taking place during the Depression.

Playing the "soul sound," The Dawn Five entertained at the Valentine dance, "Heart and Soul."

School spirit exploded during Panther Pep Week which included the County Tourney. Students featured new booster buttons proclaiming "Wipe 'em out Panthers" throughout the week-long celebration and also during the sectionals in which NC played.

CHRISTMAS DANCE COURT MEMBERS included, Row 1: Jennifer Mills, Joy Leimbach, Marilee Behrmann. Row 2: Doug Kniptash, Duke Hardy, Rick Colglazier.

Academics

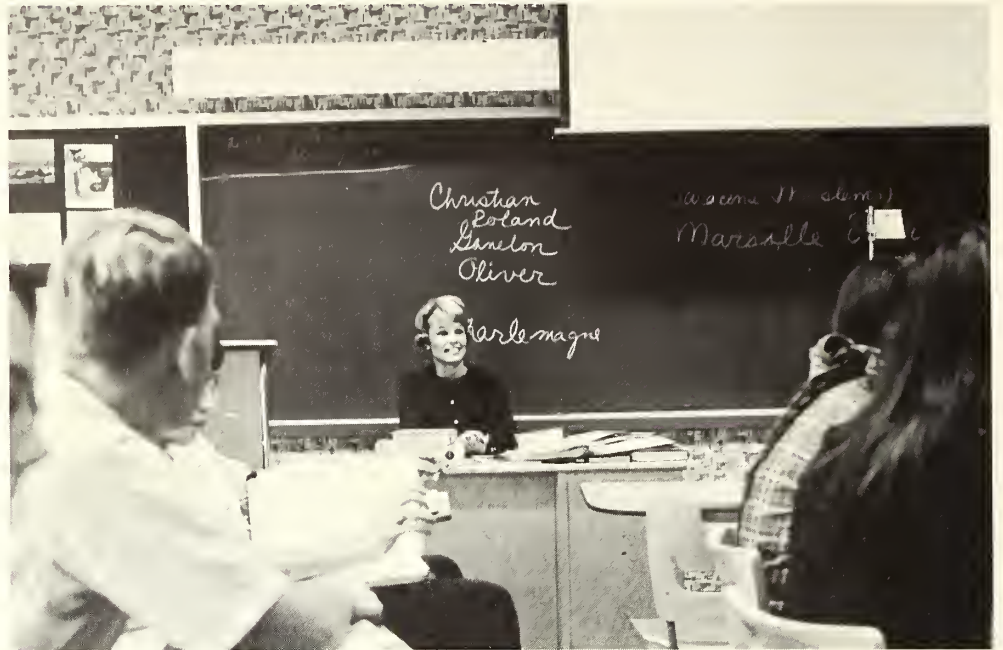

Courses join in educational pattern

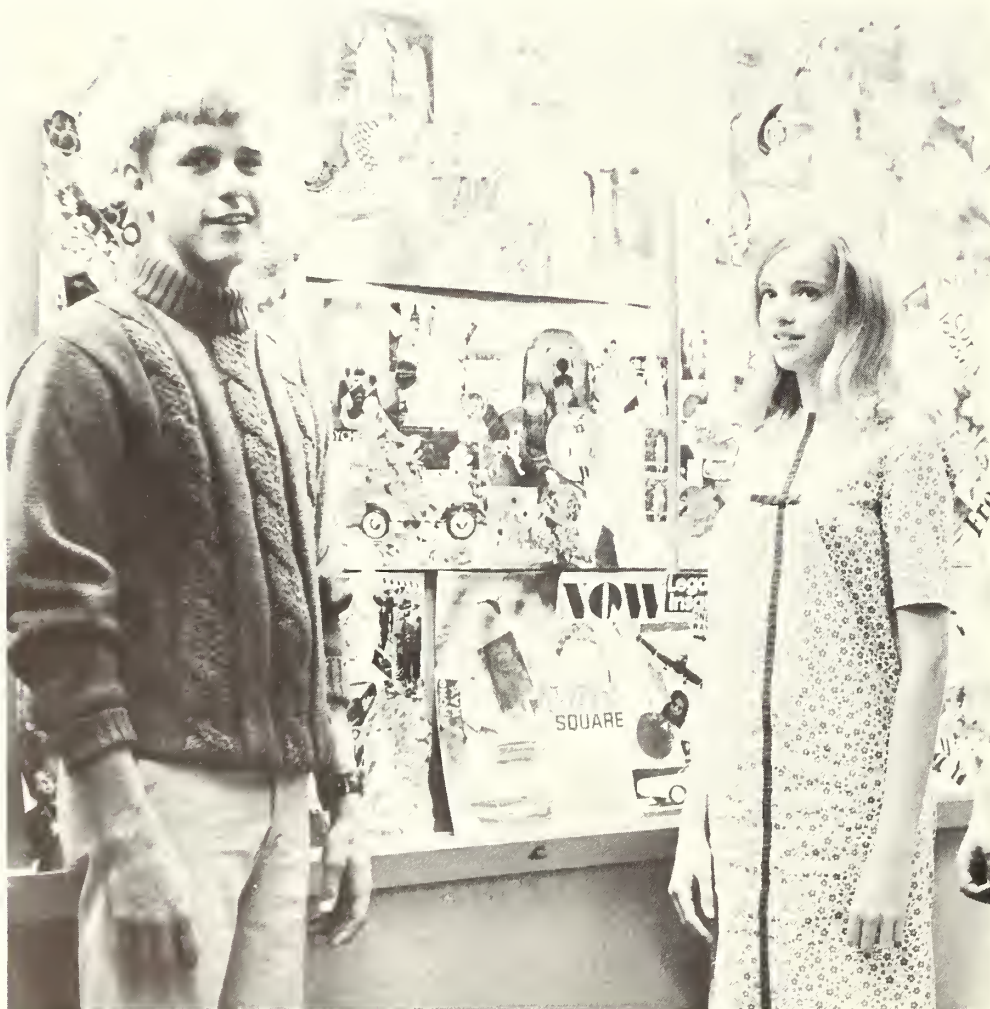

There are many pieces
To Central's academic pattern.
Lit classes learned to read
Old English and to interpret the New.
Science students decided that
All matter is a pattern, of which
The atom is only the beginning.
History classes learned of our American heritage to better know
How to uphold it.
Math students learned to Find the value of X and
Of solving complex equations.
Centralites strove to do
Our part in foreign relations
By learning the native tongues
Of our international friends.
Such courses fit in each Centralite's
Schedule as an integral Part of a pattern,
The pattern of our lives.

new classes

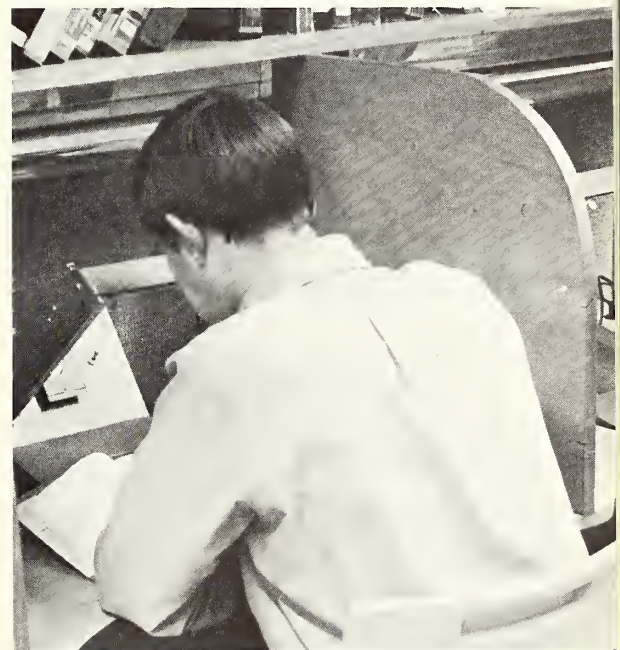

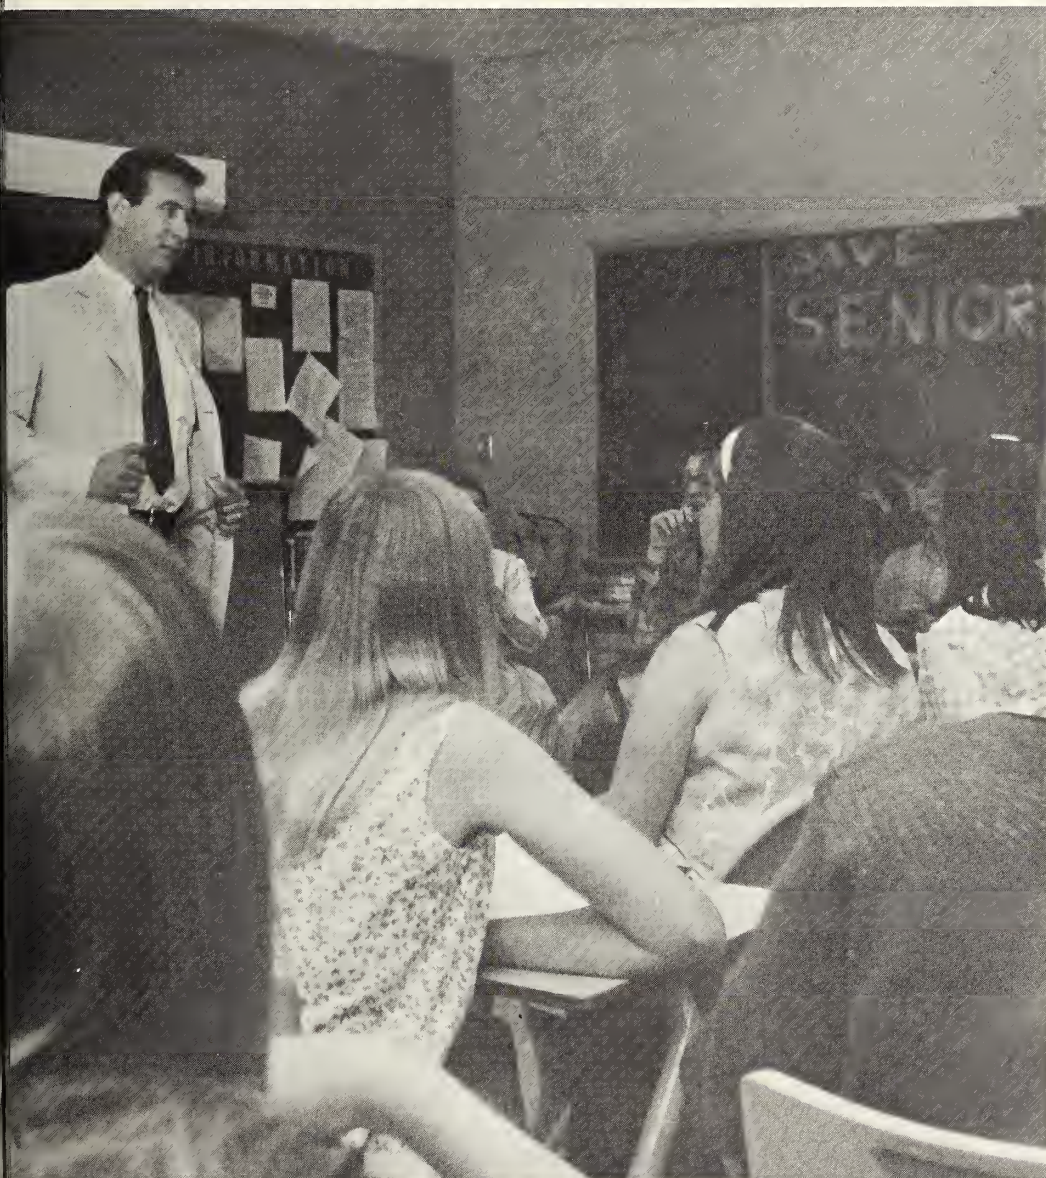

This year the English department expanded its program considerably. The administration experimented with several senior classes. Instead of the conventional individual semester courses of literature and composition, seniors had the alternative of participating in combined literature and composition courses covering an entire year. In addition, Humanities was offered to selected senior students.

Junior English teachers attempted to modernize their department. Mrs. Kivett and Mrs. Rimstidt experimented with the idea of team teaching.

Continuing in traditional manner, the reading lab provided students with the opportunity to improve their reading skills. Reading lab instructors introduced new workbooks to present vocabulary in an interesting manner.

AS BEETHOVEN LOOKS ON, Mrs. Brothers conducts her Humanities class. Class is usually spent in informal type discussion, using a seminar-like format.

During the busy summer, journalists interrupted their favorite activities to work out the planning stages for the school publications. Northerner editor Jan Lingeman, accompanied by other staff members, spent two weeks at Ball State drawing layouts and learning production techniques. Beth Harris, Northern Lights editor, was equally busy as she attended the Newspaper Work Shop at Indiana University. The beginning of school brought enthusiastic staff members into full operation scheduling pictures and writing copy. An extensive ads campaign and the many Northerner subscribers financed the book. For the first time, the cover was revealed before the book was distributed.

Dedication and hard work brought success to the Northern Lights. A new addition to the newspaper, an ads section, helped finance the paper. Excited staff members have high hopes of expanding the present special and regular bi-weekly issues.

Languages advance new cultural ideas

Participating in the I. U. Honors Program again were the French, German, Spanish, and Latin classes. A student is eligible only if he is a junior and enrolled in the third or fourth year of language.

Emphasis was placed on audio-lingual, which was used more in class than in previous years. New supplementary readers and textbooks, along with new tapes and films were available.

Mr. Schaaf, a Spanish teacher, and three German teachers, Miss Pihlak, Miss Sabol, and Mr. Tully traveled to junior highs to teach the ninth grade the same first year language courses that are offered at North Central. Cindy Cagle, a student in her fourth year of studies, accompanied Mr. Tully to Northview as an aid in teaching the first year students.

New ideas intrigue social studies department

EXHIBITING HIS skill on the sitar, an Indian folk instrument, Don Tavel entertains Mr. Meek's world history class which studied the various cultures of many countries.

A new addition was made to the social studies department, involving a new method of teaching. The experimental class used paperback books rather than the common textbook. The new technique was put to use in the United States history class for juniors. A newly established paperback library and a classroom set of the new texts were available.

The selection of new textbooks for the following year kept the teachers very busy. They also spent a great deal of time reading and reviewing texts that were being considered for state adoption. Along with the choosing of new books, the social studies department kept occupied in preparing for participation in the North Central Evaluation.

Many politically minded students were enthused by discussions in the social studies classes pertaining to the national and local elections. Panels and debates between students were common. Guest speakers representing local candidates were invited to talk with the students.

technical skills

Practicing the theme of "learning by doing," students in advanced science classes spent much time in the laboratory. Those studying botany used scientific methods to apply their knowledge of the plant kingdom to their own existence.

In the chemistry section an independent study program was introduced to the Chemistry 1-X students. Each month directed studies were assigned; the remainder of the time the students were on their own.

A new approach to learning was added to physics classes. Using the Harvard Project program, students benefited from current scientific films and a variety of experiments.

Math department expands concepts to meet broad opportunities

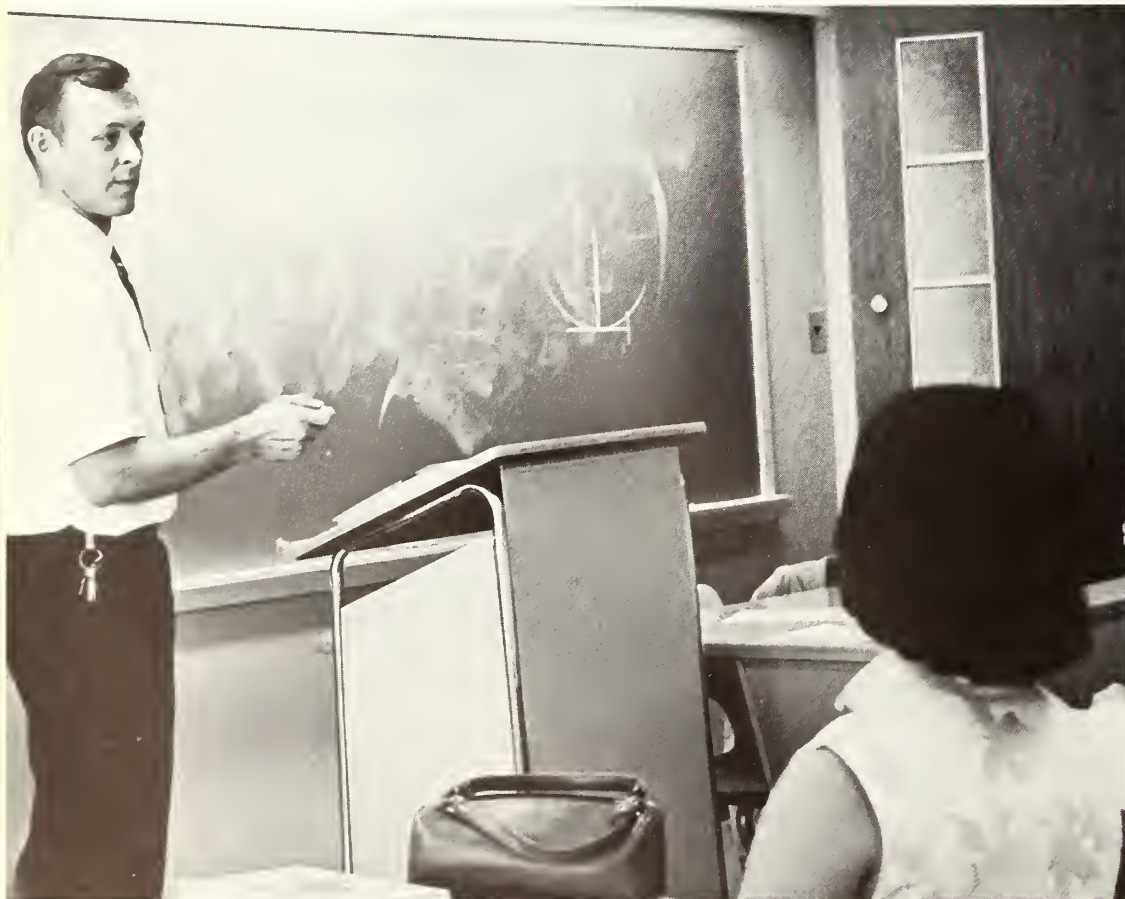

PROVING THEIR KNOWLEDGE of theorems and postulates, sophomores Kris Servaas and Jeff Stone team together to prove to the class a problem in Geometry I.

Because of the increased enrollment, North Central's mathematics department found it necessary to fulfill the individual needs of each student.

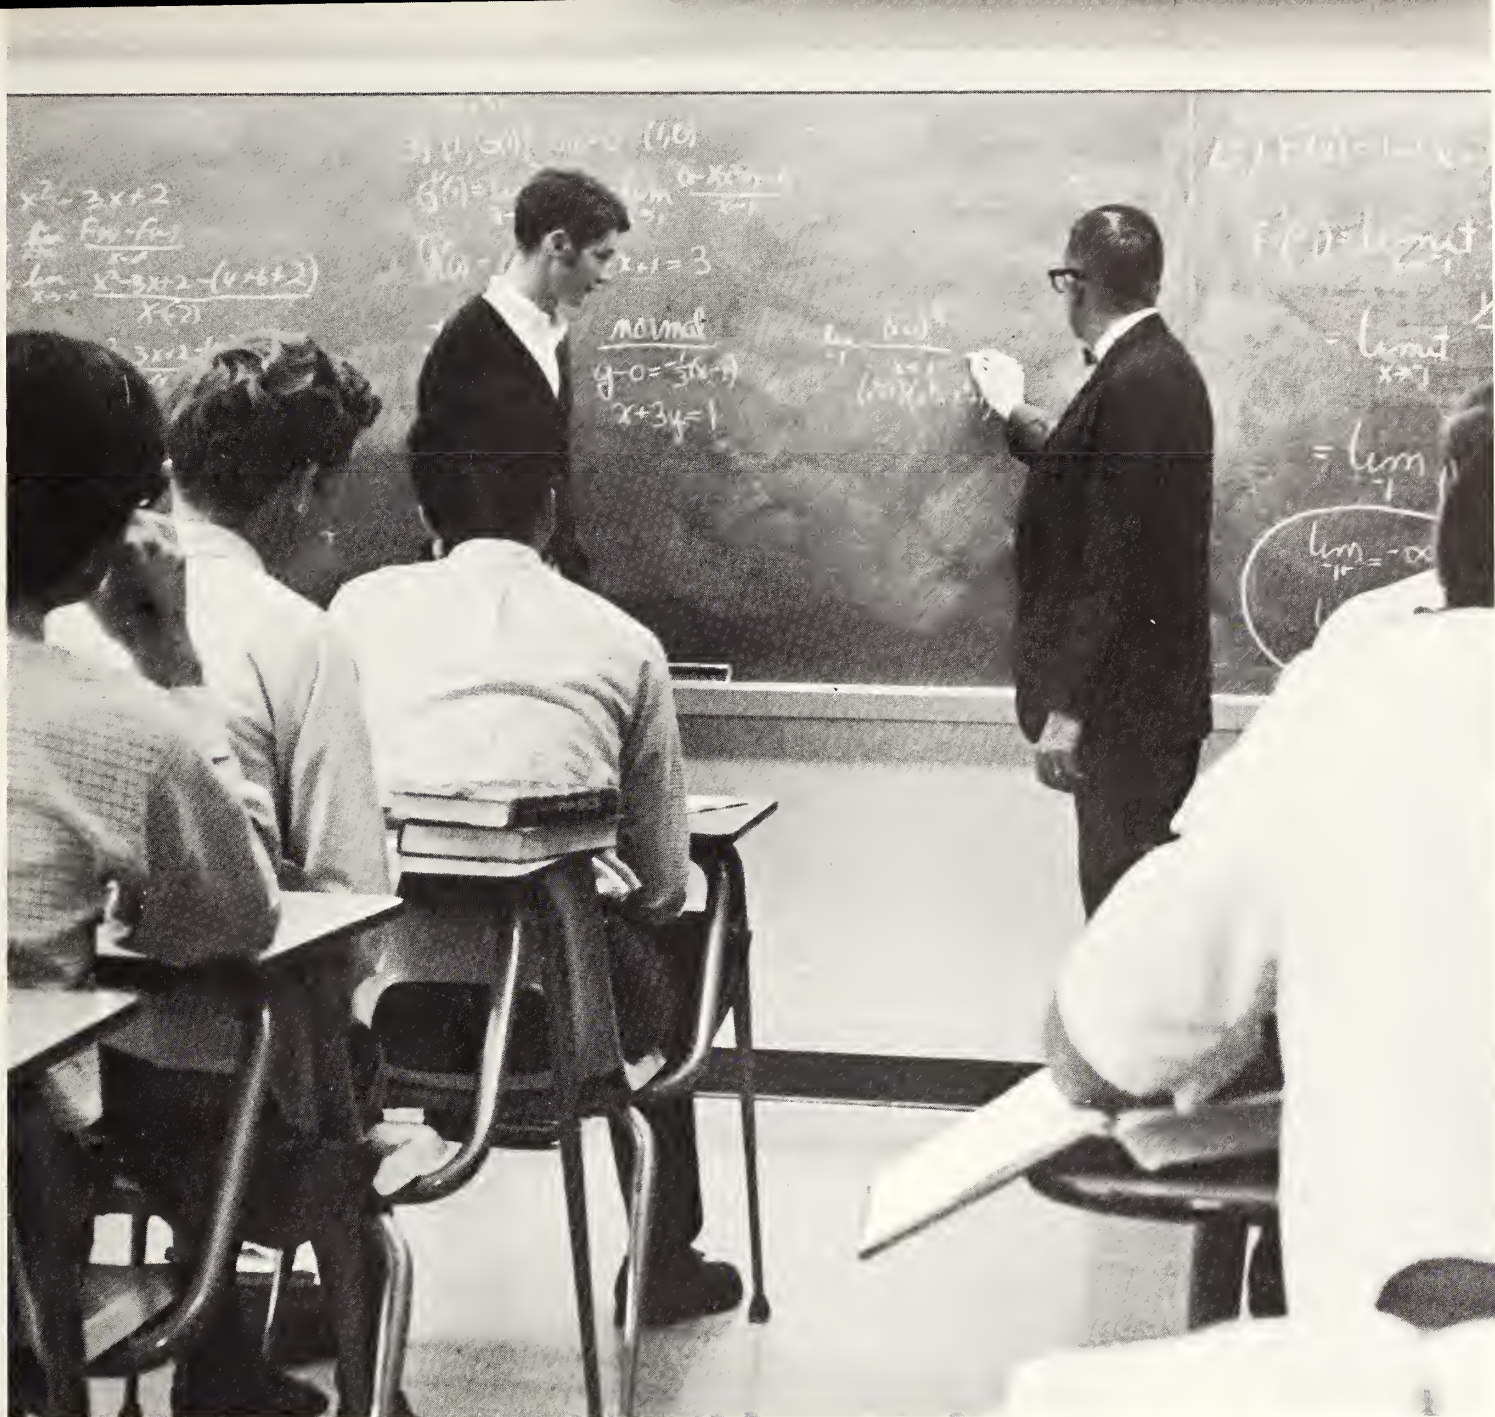

Courses ranging from general math to the more difficult classes of geometry, trigonometry, calculus, and math topics were offered to diversify the program. In each field the mathematics faculty made provisions to base requirements according to individual ability. To advance the pattern of learning, teachers conducted after-school help sessions; and utilized team teaching to bring the process into full development for each student.

Business world conforms to new demands

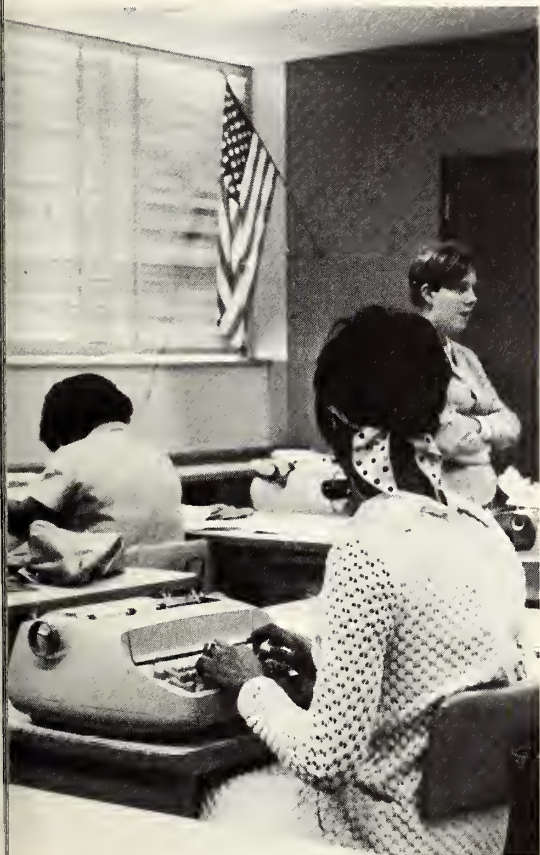

Because of the computer-bound society of today, the business world must conform to its demands. To give this field a prospective background, North Central's business department offered data processing which deals with the observation and study of computers and their accessories. Merchandising, clerical service, typing, and law trials were also part of the curriculum.

The department's faculty also increased with the addition of Miss Kathy Ann White and Mr. Samuel Morris in their respective fields, shorthand and clerical practice, and selling and business law.

The school purchased new electric typewriters in order to take care of the increased number of business students in the department.

creativity

Surrounded by clay, plaster, oil paints and canvas, a North Central art student developed talents through trial and error. With the addition of the new Instructional Services Building, more space, equipment, and facilities were made available to the individual. The advanced art student and those taking silver crafts made use of this new building. Two new sculpture classes were also added, making twenty-nine hours of art available to the interested student.

Creating life-like figures, colored pots, and Egyptian jewelry were some of the goals of the ceramics pupils, while the painting students expressed their feelings on paper. Being realistic or surrealistic were the alternatives of the art-minded Centralite.

The pep band helped to promote panther spirit by playing our school song and fight songs. In addition they helped the cheerleaders in their cheers. Selected as a member of the All American High School Band, Frank Shirley excelled on the trumpet.

Ringling their bells at Christmas to promote holiday cheer, the Bell Choir toured the city for their performances. The Concert Band comprised of sophomores, trained students in tonal quality and working together. The Stage Band performed during pop concerts, Junior Spectacular and convocations. Performing all orchestral literature, the Orchestra has won many awards. The Symphonic Wind Ensemble also won many honors through their excellent performances.

Student music groups create family atmosphere in practice

The outlook of the music department was a "family affair." The choir instructors stressed the idea of working as a team in order to present successful performances. The students participating in the department were taught to work as a unit and to concentrate on the blend of all their voices, rather than their individual tone qualities. Working together promoted closer friendships, which was necessary for complete cooperation.

Knowledge through opportunity was the primary goal of the instructors. The members of Girls Ensemble were given the opportunity to sing at Clowes Hall. Mr. Martin, Mr. Critzer, Mrs. Thomas, and Mrs. Brothers, leaders of the music classes, gave equal chances to all who showed interest and desire. Many choir members were encouraged to try out for the fall musical, "Half A Sixpence" in order that they would have the experience of combining their musical and acting abilities.

Practical Arts stimulates brainpower, ingenuity

Semester projects helped the practical arts students become more aware of the fields of home economics and industrial arts. Clothing classes made a survey of fabrics and finishes and learned to develop good sewing skills. Knitting and sewing "mod" outfits were the goals of the girls. Preparing a meal, considering the nutritional value, and cost taught the students many aspects of the family diet. Reports, planning bulletin boards, and speakers helped the girls seek a better understanding of family living and child development.

Class activities which instructed the boys in outside fields of industrial arts were designing and constructing a scale model house, rebuilding air-cooled engines, and constructing amplifiers. They also worked with the mechanical formation of plastic prepared production drawings, and printed school programs.

Physical skills beneficial to student body

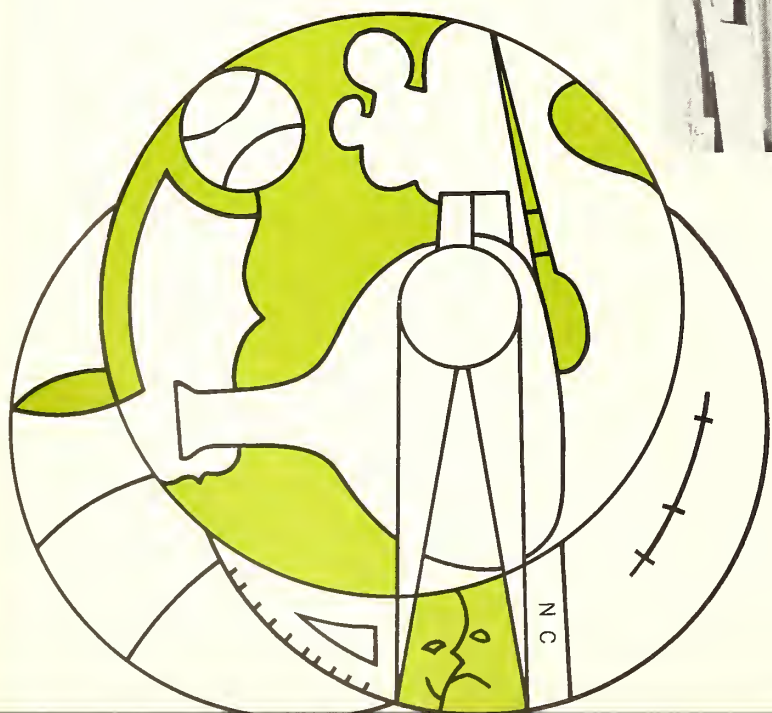

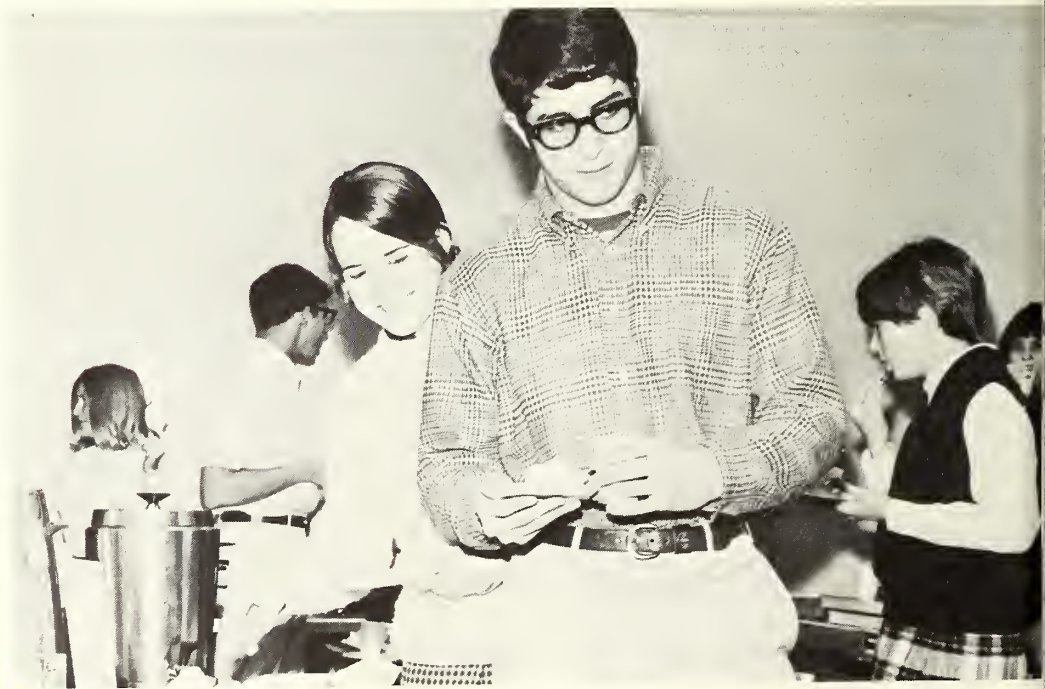

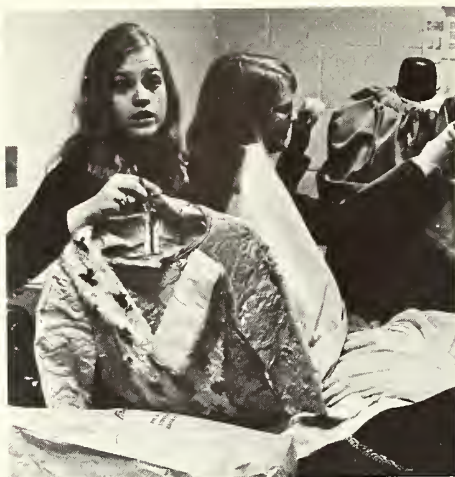

The aims of the physical education program were to contribute to the growth and development of the individual's physical, mental, and emotional qualities. The program provided for the participation of students in a variety of functional activities. Tennis, basketball, and football skills promoted mental action, while square dancing, modern dance, and track were basically physical sports. All sports developed the mind as well as the body by stimulating the thoughts of those involved.

Co-educational gymnastics seemed to be the most enjoyable sport of the year. The boys developed their biceps while the girls performed routines which they planned on the available equipment, which included parallel bars, side horses, and traveling rings.

Organizations

Belonging important in every pattern

In the pattern of everyone's life
There must be organization.
Everyone likes to belong to a group—
Especially one in which the members
Share the same interests.
North Central students joined in
An extensive and intricately planned
Pattern of clubs and activities—
Meeting together periodically
To produce, to think, to discuss—
But most of all, to enjoy
Themselves and being with others.
This was one of the ways
Each Centralite became a vital piece—
A link in the pattern of the whole.
Leading or being led,
Each offered his contribution
In the areas of his interest.
Adding to his individual pattern—
The pattern of his life.

By incorporating President Bob Habig's idea of a "mini-council", the 112 members of the Student Council led the student body in a very active year. Under the plan, each home-room was a small student council which could submit ideas to the regular council.

Thirty-one of the council members attended the State Student Council convention at Madison Heights High School in Anderson. Attending members exchanged ideas with representatives from other areas.

Participation and hard work helped the council make successes of its traditional activities such as College Night and the Christmas Dance as well as beginning new events such as the homecoming skit contest.

Honoraries stress service, character, school involvement

FOR BREAKFAST, Junior Beth Schaller buys a doughnut from Key Club members Larry Gardiner and Jim Freihofer.

Key Club, an affiliate of the Kiwanis International Clubs, performed service projects to aid both the school and community. To gain membership, a boy must have attended North Central for one semester, have a grade point average of 2.0, obtained the recommendations of two teachers, and be approved by the sponsor. The club raised the money for its many activities by sponsoring mixers, washing cars, and collecting dues. Led by President John Busch, Vice-president Don Waller, Secretary Jim Wallace, Treasurer Denny Dawson, and Historian Doug Nie, the members of Key Club sponsored many service projects. Along with their annual efforts as guides for "Back to School Night", and "College Night", selling refreshments at games, and serving breakfast in the cafeteria, the Key Club extended its canned food drive to help ten to fifteen needy Washington Township families during the Christmas season.

Scholarship, leadership, character, and service became the motto of those Centralites initiated into the National Honor Society. Before one may be asked into the organization, he must rank in the top 25% of his class and gain two merit points from his teachers. Again this year, the members volunteered to tutor students needing help in all the major academic areas. In May, the members held a banquet and assembly for initiates and parents, along with a dinner in the fall to get acquainted.

Films, lectures excite science, math curiosity

Students explored science and math through four clubs. Biology club members gained by watching experiments, demonstrations, and films.

Accuracy and speed became the bywords of students in the Slide Rule Club. Through practice calculations and intralub competition, members increased their proficiency in math.

Science Reading Club read about and discussed the many recent scientific innovations, such as organ transplants and space exploration.

Outstanding math students joined Mu Alpha Theta, a national mathematics honorary. Besides working interesting problems not pursued in the regular course, speakers presented programs on such practical applications of math as computer programming and processing.

Second Row: Julie Schubert, Jan Lingeman, Nancy Scherer, Carole Fiedler, Beth Harris, and Fred Alexander. Mr. Rod Cord and Mrs. Evelyn Rhamy served as co-sponsors for this honorary society for high school journalists.

Centralites pursued journalistic interests in a variety of ways this year. The Journalism club investigated the many facets of journalism through speakers, tours, and individual projects.

Quill and Scroll, an international high school journalism honorary society, initiated eleven members at its banquet, "Politics and the Pen". Prerequisites for membership included working on a publication staff for a year and ranking in the top third of the class.

Students who were interested in contributing to the newspaper, but could not work it into their academic schedule, joined the new Newspaper Activity. Supervised by the "Northern Lights Editorial Board", these Centralites wrote stories, conducted interviews, and learned about newspaper production through experience.

Literary pattern follows classic through modern

Satisfying the interests of the literary-minded student, North Central offered a quartet of English-oriented clubs. Compiling a reading list, Great Books Club members made selections from literary masterpieces of the world and analyzed them according to style and period.

Limiting discussion to one writer per meeting, members of American Authors Club followed the trends that have influenced American writing.

Covering the English branch of literature was Shakespeare Club. Besides analyzing this giant of English literature, members often donned costumes to dramatize various plays. Creating their own verse, Poetry Club members also studied the different moods and mechanics of classical and contemporary authors.

CREATING A HOLIDAY atmosphere, Pat Keller and Marlene Keith string up the German Merry Christmas in order to begin festivities during their club period.

DRESSED IN CLASSIC TOGAS, Latin Club members dine in ancient Roman luxury at their annual spring banquet.

Foreign flair sets Christmas excitement

By offering a broader knowledge and understanding of foreign countries, the language clubs supplemented classes in French, German, Spanish, and Latin. Continuing tradition, the French Club cooked their own Parisian cuisine. The club also imported a French film. Complete with piñata, the Spanish Club looked forward to its annual Christmas party. Studying the customs, the German Club learns more about the country. Members of the clubs put on skits of the country represented.

Latin Club members looked back in time to the Roman Empire. They highlighted the year with an authentic feast complete with togas and slaves. These clubs gave a student a deeper understanding and created a closer indirect relationship with the native people of many different areas.

AS A PART OF BLACK CULTURE CLUB, Carla Williams discusses a book on Negro achievements with Mrs. Rodman and Mr. Richardson, who served as sponsors of the club.

Active clubs spur historical appreciation

Combining seminars, projects, and group discussions, the political history and culture clubs offered a variety of activities. Newly organized, the Black Culture Club initiated a study of Afro-art and literature. Resulting as a suggestion at a Human Relations forum, the club was first offered during second semester.

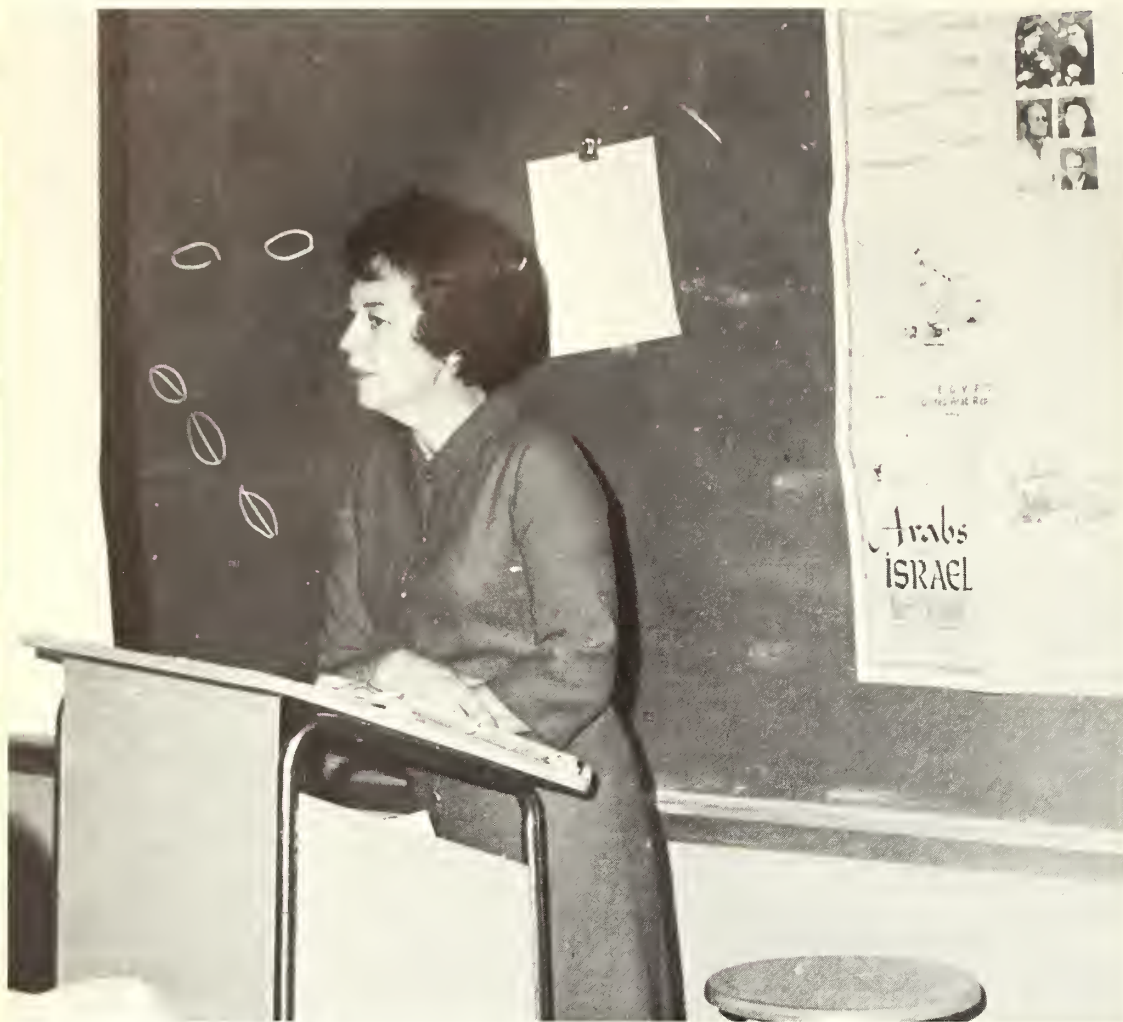

Junior Historical Society members probed deeper into Indiana history through speakers and film sessions. Topics such as the KKK in Indiana and the Civil Liberties Union were discussed.

After completing the term paper required for membership, Military History Club members delved into the science of battle strategy, often playing the game "Stratego."

Practicing "Robert's Rules of Order," Government Club members participated in a mock legislature in May. During the Saturday session NC legislators brought up bills and voted on pertinent issues.

JUNIOR HISTORICAL SOCIETY President Greg Schlegel, member Dan McCuen, and sponsor Mr. Richardson discuss the remarks made by Mr. Alan Goldstein in his talk on the Civil Liberties Union.

Clubs promote increased cultural awareness

Through informing Centralites on the politics and cultures of other nations four clubs promoted an interest in and an understanding of the peoples of the world. Travel Club offered members an armchair view of the world's sights from England to Japan, with slides and movies of members' vacations.

Studying different societies, the World Culture Club members examined the art, literature, and music of foreign countries as contrasted with those of America. The International Relations Club studied and analyzed current affairs and the world's problems in relation to the United States.

Interpreting the national motto, "Walk together, talk together o ye peoples of the earth, for then, and only then, shall ye have peace." American Field Service members advanced world understanding by sponsoring many meetings between exchange students and others in the schools. Centralites had an opportunity to meet and talk with the AFS students during the annual Coke Party.

Forensics team brings rewards to Centralites

Through participation in the Indiana High School Forensics Association tourney, the NFL national tourney, and other invitionals, students interested in public speaking earned the 25 points necessary for National Forensics League membership. The North Central chapter of this national honorary society sponsored an invitational tourney and presented an assembly program featuring poetry, original oratory, and drama.

"Resolved that compulsory service be required for all citizens of the United States" became the topic of discussion for debate team members. Through analyzation and research, Debate Club members learned different techniques to present logical arguments necessary for debates.

For the children, the Drama Club presented Nicollo and Nicollette. Participation in the school play gained points to count towards membership in National Thespians.

Costumes of all modes of dress and make-up for all productions were efficiently maintained by the Costume-Makeup Club.

Stage Crew members maintained one of the best equipped stages in the Midwest with its sound equipment and lighting. Elaborate coordination was required to efficiently manage the microphones and stage mechanisms.

Art, music set tempo for cultural arts

Under the direction of Mr. Dennis, the Chamber Music Club learned about the different styles of music and musical periods. When not working on original arrangements, Folk Music Club members performed at events such as the Senior Bonfire, the Key Club Convention, and the Family Jamboree. The highlight of the year was producing an assembly presented to the student body.

While studying particular types of music, students in the Great Music Club enjoyed live demonstrations by students within the school. Supervised by Mr. Martin, the Mandolin Choir did their own arrangements and performed at a number of churches, civic functions and parties.

The Art Club was active in many projects. Members displayed their work at the all-school art show. Many students entered contests and won top honors with their creations.

CHAMBER MUSIC CLUB provides Katy Simmons and Katie Kahn a chance to compose their own musical arrangements.

Activities broaden Centralites knowledge of future careers

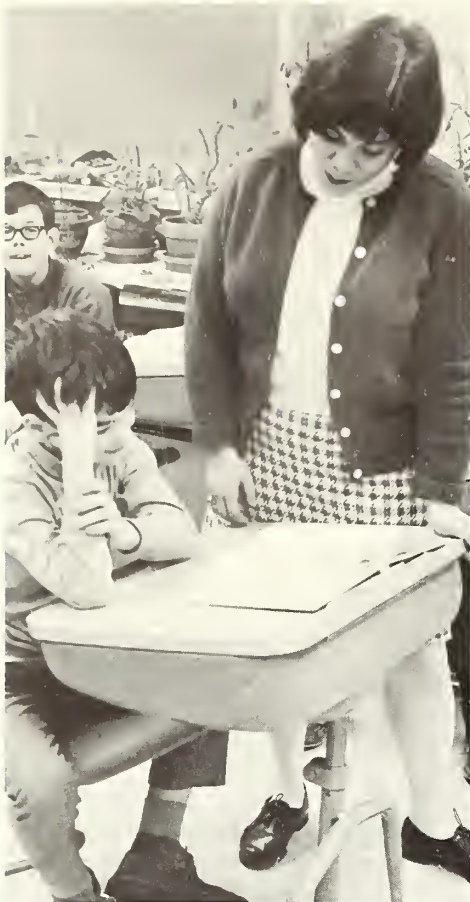

Members of Future Teachers of America devoted club periods to studying aspects of teaching. Besides learning how to use audiovisual teaching aids, members practiced grade book recording techniques and other practical activities.

This year the Red Cross Club collected $450 in their annual drive. This was the largest amount ever collected by the club, and the local Red Cross Chapter greatly appreciated it. Another charity project carried out this year was a visit to the Indiana State Girls School.

Students enrolled in the Pre-teaching course spent the first two weeks observing other grade school classes. After the two week preparation period students received assignments to grade schools in the surrounding area to aid the teachers as well as to observe teaching techniques. Through the course, students interested in education could find out if it was the occupation in which they wanted to major in.

Two students attended the State Health Careers Meeting. Joyce Cannell, president of the North Central Chapter, and Terri Schlossburg represented the school. Members listened to speakers on the many health career opportunities available.

AT NORA ELEMENTARY SCHOOL, Julie Morris spends the first two periods of the day helping 4th grade students in reading.

Cadet corps emphasizes training in leadership

RECEIVING THE 1968 1st year riflemen Award, Bob Decker beams proudly.

To better prepare themselves for the future, the members of the NDCC Infantry Battalion put in long hours of intensive training, focusing on leadership, discipline, and mental and physical development.

The Drill Team achieved skill in accuracy and displayed their accomplishments in formations and routines dealing with precise actions. Displaying unique squad formation and maneuvers, the team participated in drill meets at all levels, including city, county, and state championships.

One phase of the NDCC program was the Rifle Team, which represented

North Central well in local, sectional, and state competitions.

The elite group which made up the Color Guard required scholarship as well as the desire to serve. At sports events and other school functions the Color Guard had the privilege to present the flag. The cadets also carried the national colors in the Veteran's Day Parade.

Cadets and their sponsors planned the 1968 Military Ball around the theme, It Might As Well Be Spring. Both civilian and military students enjoyed this formal function which took place in the Student Center.

Academic clubs provide intellectual challenge

CHESS TEAM MEMBERS Don Katz, Paul Enright, Dana Dlott and John VonFange study the chess board to decide what will be the next chess move.

Under the direction of sponsors Mr. Morris Campbell and Mr. Thomas Cox, the Chess Team continued its winning tradition by outplaying its opponents. Team members met once a week during activity period to play chess and to discuss previous matches.

Students interested in intellectual pursuits found satisfaction by joining Academic Games. Each week they brought in new math problems and brain teasers to challenge other members. Games such as three dimensional tic-tac-toe and new versions of W'ff and Proof tested members' ability to reason quickly and effectively.

The Photography Club gave camera bugs an opportunity to exchange ideas on picture-taking. Members discussed the processes of loading film, picture composition, and developing. Students brought in their own work to be criticized by other members of the club.

Outdoor enthusiasts congregated at meetings of the Angler-Nimrod Club. The boys planned numerous weekend trips to ideal hunting and fishing spots throughout the state parks and forests.

Individual improvement offered

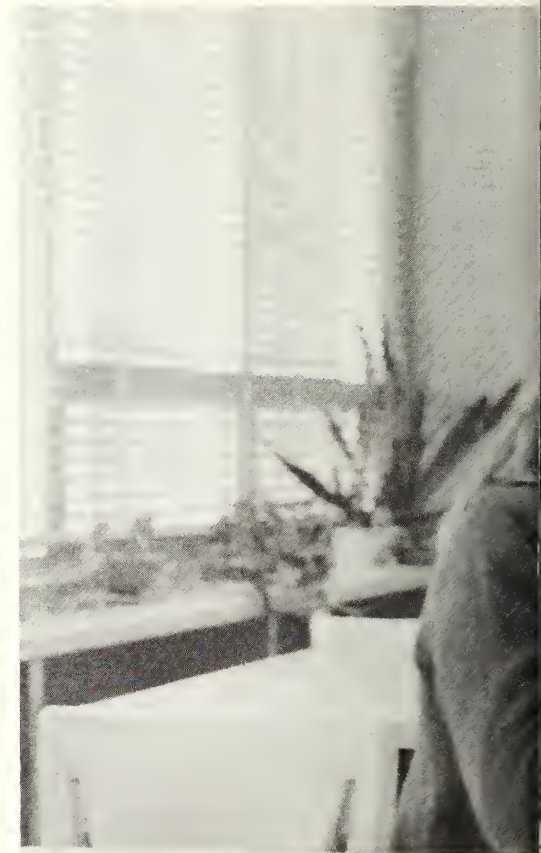

Girls not enrolled in physical education courses kept their weight down and figures trim by joining the Junior-Senior Girls' Exercise Club. Each week members were chosen to demonstrate a new exercise, showing the correct way to execute it and for which part of the body it was beneficial to.

Learning the basic fundamentals of knitting such as casting on and off and knitting and purling stitches were some of the goals of the members of the Knitting Club. Projects for charity as well as individual projects were some of their accomplishments

If any member had difficulty in understanding instructions or compiling an unusual stitch, it was easy for the knitter to receive help in the club. To learn the proper care of knitted garments, the club asked a specialist to come and discuss the topic.

International Foods Club gave students the chance to prepare and taste foreign foods. Members were provided with new recipes each week. Food demonstrations were given by students and professional cooks.

Shop-oriented clubs provide mechanical skill

IN INTENSE CONCENTRATION, Electronics Club members Darren Palmer and David Kanaur make use of the testing machine to check television tubes.

By making practical use of their time, members of the Boys' Industrial Arts Club made projects of metal and wood. The shop enabled boys to pursue individual interests.

By working out mechanical layouts and individual projects, Drafting Club members gained skill in design and architectural composition. Most students used the period to supplement their drafting class.

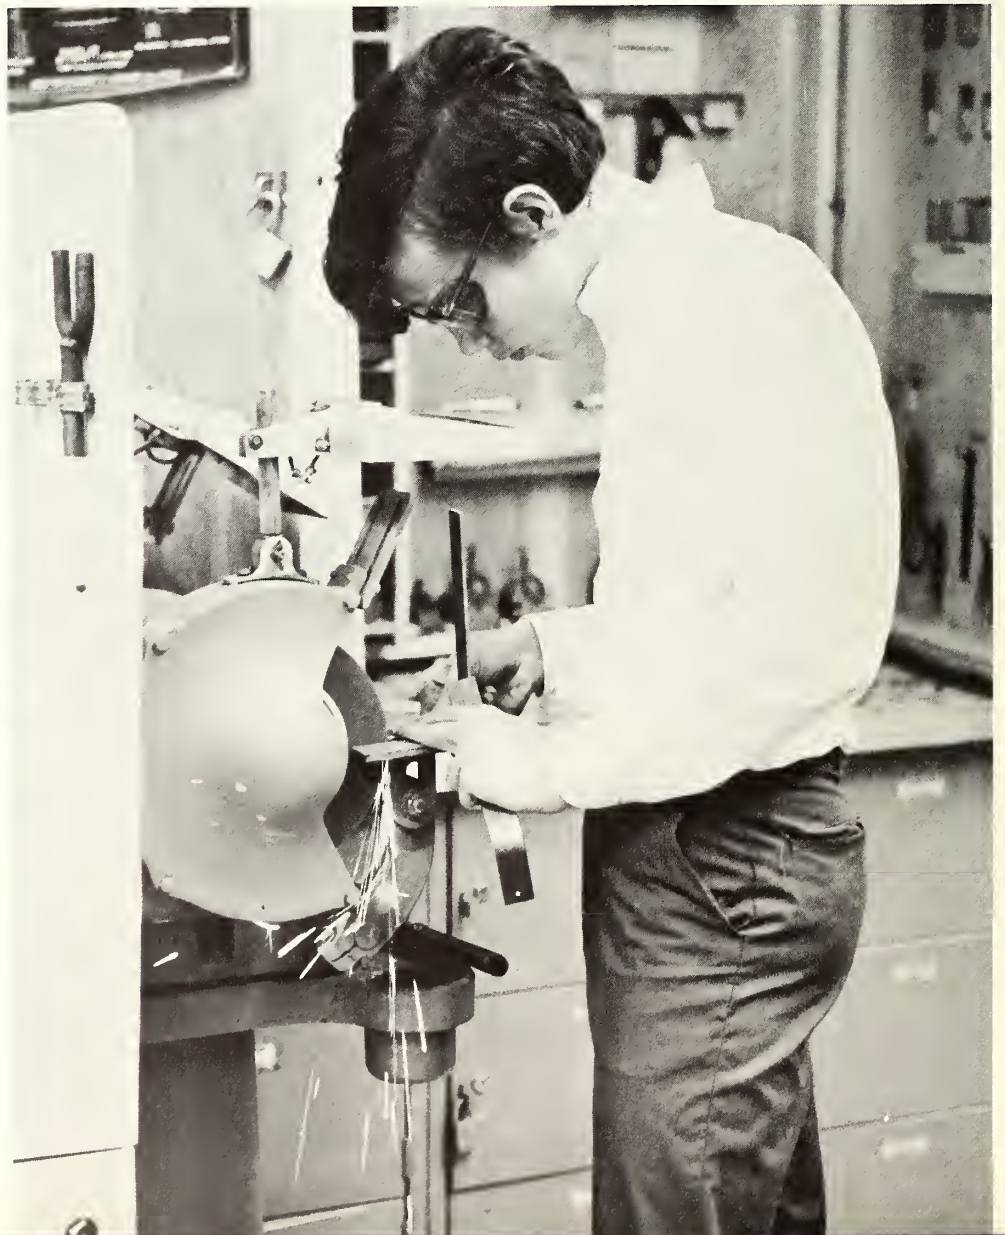

Girls' Automechanics was a club designed to enrich girls with a better understanding of auto parts. Participants became better operators of cars. Exploring aspects of the automotive world, the girls tuned-up car engines.

Boys in the Electronics Club researched the occupational advantages in the field of electronics. They checked equipment, learned how to make minor adjustments on radios, and assembled amplifier kits.

Students donate study halls to help in various departments

Centralites helped teachers run various departments this year in several different fields. Students who volunteered to be assistants enjoyed the freedom of honor study hall. The preparing of labs, handling equipment, grading papers, and typing handouts gave Science Service Club members an insight to a career in science.

Physical education helpers aided gym teachers by leading exercises and demonstrating stunts to be taught to the gym students. Helpers are chosen because of their interest and ability in physical skills.

Learning many processes, audio visual technicians made visual aids to illustrate teacher's lessons. Officers were Randy Solecki, president; Roy Trester, Vice-president; Dody McMullen, Secretary-Treasurer.

The Graphic Arts Club members gained experience by attacking actual projects such as tickets and programs. These members enlarged their knowledge of printing and allied trades.

Checking in books, library helpers not only perform a service to the school, but gained experience for any field in which they wish to major.

LIBRARY ASSISTANTS contribute their services to their school. In the browsing room, Joyce Eden, Holly Mohr, and Judy Sullivan

Hundreds of spirited Panthers exhibit enthusiasm and zeal

Numbering over 1400, members of Panther Athletic helped to promote school spirit. During activity periods they watched demonstrations by North Central athletic teams, recognized athletes with awards, and listened to speakers from professional organizations, including the Indiana Pacers.

Duke Hardy served as president; Gary Linder, vice-president; Joy Leimbach, secretary; and Darrell Pike and LaSalle Thompson, sergeants-at-arms.

Outfitted in red and white capes, the Booster Block assisted the cheerleaders in keeping the crowds lively at basketball games. The addition of red and black mittens added color to the girls' synchronized hand movements. They selected Judy Stone as president; Terry Tuck, vice-president; Kathy Richardson, secretary; and Brenda Hayes, treasurer.

Majorette Jamie Phillippe led the Baton Corps during the football and basketball games. On October 5, the Corps sponsored a meet at North Central and captured first place. In the solo division, Anne Ziegner took second place, Debbie Kriesher, fourth, and Cindy Kriegbaum, fourth. Business clubs

Students needing more time to practice and develop business skills were given the opportunity in clubs which helped to prepare them for college or summer jobs.

Members of the Review Typing Club reviewed skills in order to perfect their speed and accuracy. Each student concentrated on areas in which he needed improvement. The club was offered to any student with one semester of typing.

The Notehand Club provided students a chance to learn a shorthand system which would become helpful in taking notes during high school and college lecture courses. Although the club met during the activity period, it was conducted similar to a class with a textbook.

Students currently enrolled in a shorthand course were able to become members of the Shorthand Club. They reviewed old lessons as well as practiced current ones.

Is the key to success in every game.
North Central athletes in 1969
Often experienced the joy of victory
But sometimes also the pain of defeat.
Sports brought excitement to many—
Both players and fans.
Long hours of practice
Perfecting varied skills,
Toning every muscle to readiness
Paid off time and again.
Athletes also experienced the thrill
Of knowing you've done your best
Against tough competition
Knowing you're part of a team—
Vital to the whole.
Knowing that you as yourself count
In a plan that is part of a pattern—
The pattern of your life.

Speed, hard work, and spirit characterized Coach Lickliter's basketball squad this year. Finishing a third straight winning season, the team took a drop in height and posted a slate of 13-10. The cagers started the season by dropping contests to New Castle and Carmel, but rebounded to defeat Lawrence and Kokomo in the next two games. In a close game with highly rated Marshall, the Panthers emerged victorious with a score standing at 96-95. Wabash entered the Panther schedule this year and proved to be a very worthy opponent, but was beaten by the roundballers, 71-70, in one of the most exciting games of the season.

The highest points for the varsity five came during tournament play, both county and sectional. In county play, North Central overwhelmed Pike, 90-68, and went on to gain revenge against Warren Central, who had beaten them by one point in regular play. The Panthers dropped the last game in tourney play to Southport by a five point margin. The team had upset the Cardinals for the county crown in the previous season. In sectional play the cagers beat Ben Davis in the first contest, but lost to Attucks in the second, playing their best game of the year against the very highly rated team.

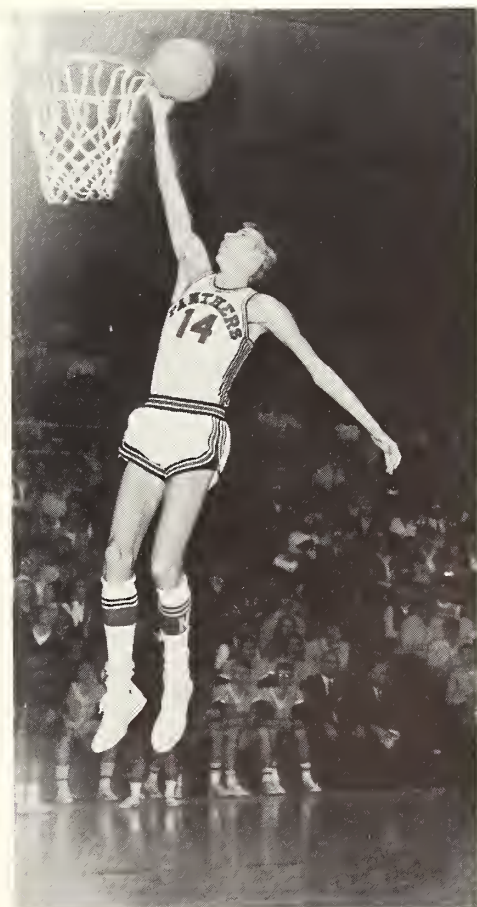

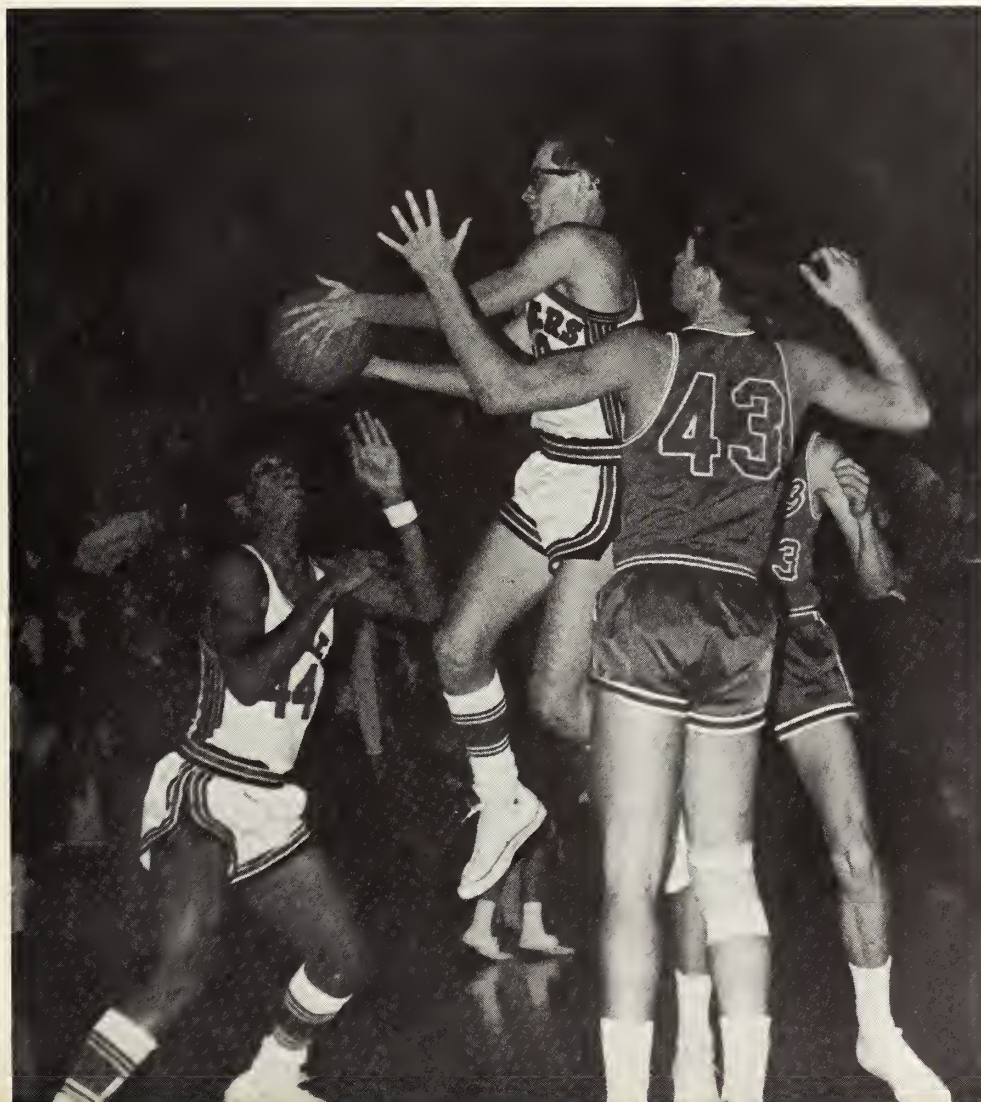

CLIMBING HIGH TO MAKE a shot, Junior Paul Weeks outjumps his Wabash opponent. Weeks totaled 314 points for the season.

Proving to be a very strong center was 6-5 senior Bill Vinton. His rebounds and basketwork, in which he totaled 181 points for the season, were invaluable to team success. Duke Hardy was perhaps the most decisive factor in team success. The 5-8 guard led in scoring and set a new record of 187 completed assists. His drive and determination sparked team spirit when it reached low ebbs. He, along with Paul Weeks was named to the All-Sectional team. Weeks averaged 12 rebounds per game, which led to many points for the Panthers. In addition to rebounding, he totaled 314 points for the season.

Gary Pittenger, at forward, was the main point-getter for the five, and tied the school record for total points in regular play at 408 points. Rounding out the team were Rick Lash, Kevin Snow, Larry Crowe, Dave Highmark, Dave Elliot, and Matt Miller.

The reserves, under the direction of Coach Jack Walter, finished a successful season of 11-9. Every man was played in almost every game, giving much experience to the squad.

SHOWING GREAT SKILL AND EFFORT Dave Taylor executes his routine on the rings.

Capturing the county's first championship crown, the North Central gymnastic team had a highly successful season. The team also had a 15-4 record for dual meet competition. Coach John Emry attributed this record to having "a well-balanced team." The squad also relied on its depth and starting routines. Other high points of the season included placing third at the Columbus Invitational and getting fifth at the Warren Central Invitational, as well as winning the county meet, in which three individual firsts, two seconds, and four thirds were taken.

Some of the standouts this year were Seniors Jack Harcourt on the side horse and free exercise, Stu Monical on the parallel bars and high bar, and Gary Cohen on the rings, trampoline, and free exercise. Outstanding juniors were Dave Morgan in tumbling and George Wilson on the parallel bars and high bar. With a number of juniors returning and many promising sophomores, the team has a fine potential for next year.

Varsity displays best season; captures fifth in state meet

The varsity along with the reserve track teams formed undoubtedly the best dual meet team in North Central's history. After completing their schedule undefeated, they went on to take a first in the county, sectional, and regional with a fifth placing in the state. Earlier in the season the Panthers beat the state champions by forty points. North Central's 880 relay team consisting of Bruce Blomberg, Dave Reel, Greg Henderson, and Rick Lash captured the state championship title in their event. In the two mile relay at the Bloomington Classic, LaSalle Thompson, Mark Bloom, Steve McNichols, and Mike Pennington secured a first with a time of 7:53.9; one of the fastest times in the nation for a high school team.

School, county, sectional, and regional records were set by the Panthers this season. Steve McNichols set a record for all of these in the two mile run at 9:41.9 and LaSalle Thompson set the school mile record with a time of 4:28. Dave Moore took the quarter mile in the county while Mike Pennington set a new school record for the half mile at 1:56 and secured a third in the state meet.

FINISHING FIRST IN THE 100 yard dash at the county meet, Rick Lash leaves the field far behind him. This is the third consecutive year the Panthers have won the meet.

IN CLEARING 9' ON A PRACTICE jump, Bob Perlstein prepares for his upcoming event. A new record was set this year at 12'9" by Bob and was equaled by Rex Callaway.

Reserves set undefeated 6-0 record

The reserve team showed promise for an excellent track team next season by blasting every team they competed with. They also won a Next Year's Varsity meet (teams consisting of members not seniors), against several local schools including, Tech, Lawrence, Warren, Ben Davis, Howe, Northwest, and Broad Ripple. Underclassmen made up a large part of the teams.

WITH HIS DISTINCTIVE WESTERN ROLL, Tom Garrity successfully clears the bar as Rick Lash lends encouragement.

Rallying diamondmen display successful season

A PANTHER SLIDES HOME safe at the Northwest game and brings in the fourth and final run. The game was a success in more than one way as Steve Overman pitched a shutout.

Scoring victory after victory, Coach Tom Bradley's varsity baseballers posted an excellent season of 13-8-1. They began the year with a fantastic string of nine wins including shut-outs against Beech Grove and Lawrence Central, and a no hitter pitched by Steve Overman against Northwest. After losing three in a row, they rebounded and with great determination and drive, won four out of their last seven season games. Starting the county tourney with a no-hitter against Beech Grove pitched by Dave Highmark, they were defeated by Lawrence Central in their second game. Hosting the State Sectional, the diamondmen fell to Arlington in their opening match.

Leading the team were pitchers Steve Overman, Jim Orr, and Monty Combs. They were not only the top moundsmen, but led the batting averages as well. Overman went on to become the season's Most Valuable Player and was also presented the coveted Sigafoos Award, a scholarship bestowed to the most outstanding baseballer in the county.

Matching the fantastic record of the varsity, the reserves fought their way to a great season of 11-5-2.

Golfers win city sectional at Riverside

Posting a winning season of 16-4-1, the varsity golf team rallied their way to victory under the direction of Coach Friedersdorf. In their first seven games, they lost three and edged past their opponents in the remaining contests. In the last fifteen games of the season, they rallied winning fourteen matches and losing one. Placing second in the county tourney, the Panthers rebounded to take the Indianapolis Crown in a highly contested match at the Riverside course.

Leading the team to an overall victory were linksmen Bob Koschmann and Gary Gant, with averages of 77.8 and 78.6 respectively. Besides Koschmann and Gant, other letter winners included Bruce Boje, Denny Dawson, Jim Jobes, and Marc Raphael.

The reserves, comprising the larger of the two teams, combined with the varsity in most matches.

CONCENTRATING ON HIS BACKHAND, Clay Tudor smashes the ball to his opposing teammate during practice. Tudor along with Campbell won the sectional doubles.

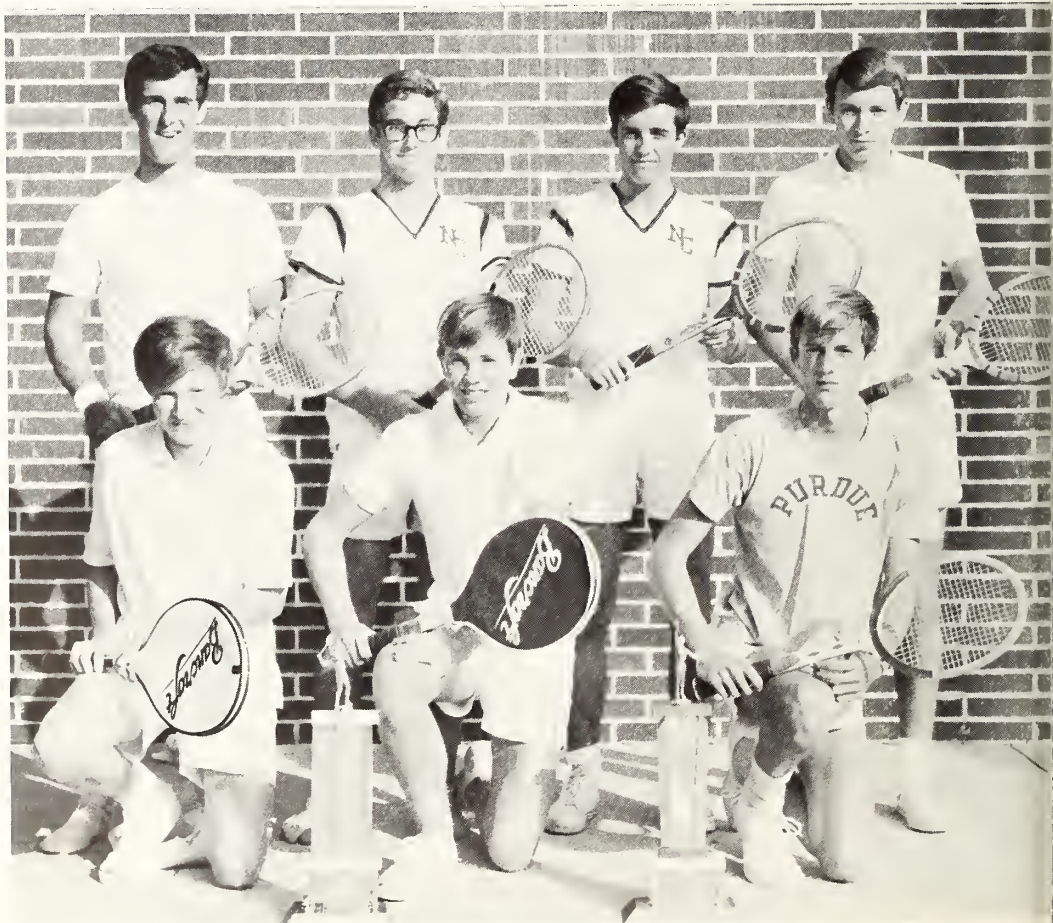

Under the coaching of Mr. John Shirley, North Central's Sectional winning tennis team continued to top their competitors with a 14-5 season.

The '68 netmen found Southport and Lafayette Jeff to be their strongest opponents of the year. They were led by senior Mike Smart and four returning lettermen, with junior players Clay Tudor and Tom Campell.

To win the sectional doubles Clay Tudor and Tom Campell, North Central's number two doubles team had to upset the Panthers top doubles team of Bruce Butz and Fred Fehsenfeld in the final round. Losing in the quarter finals to Broad Ripple, Bob Garrett was eliminated while Dave Alexander lost to the same man to take the runnerup's in sectional singles. With the combined doubles and singles teams North Central's Panthers won the State Sectional Tournament held at Lawrence Central.

Cheerleaders, lettermen help fire spirits

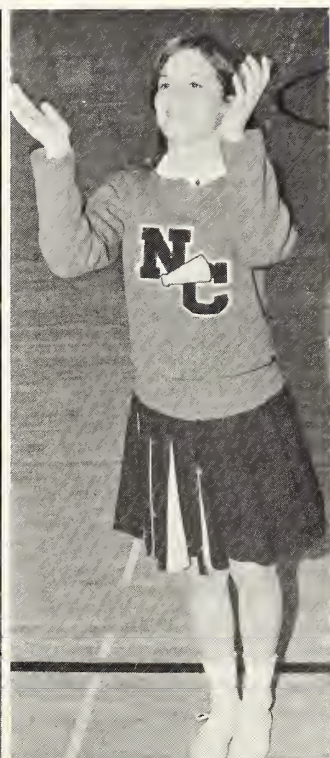

New techniques, yells, and goals were successfully developed by the cheerleaders this year. The active ten used three new yells that they learned from their sponsor Miss Clark, a former cheerleader at Indiana University. Among the new techniques were, pom-pom yells, the "candy-o-gram," and the mini tramp.

Serving as officers of the Lettermen's Club this year were: Gary Pittenger, president; Duke Hardy, vice president; Rick Lash, treasurer; and Dan Smith, secretary.

In many ways 1969 was a building year for the Panthers. The dedication, understanding, and rigorous programs of the coaching staff have again placed North Central in the ranks of a strong athletic power in addition to providing valuable preparation for future seasons.

Increased participation boasts '69 I-M season

AFTER HIKING THE BALL, the offensive line lunges forward to block out the opposing team's players in this flag football game.

During his second season as intramural director, Mr. Hudson, has increased participation and interest in the intramural program. Last year it is estimated that 25% of the student body took part in the intramural sports, but for the 1969 program it was estimated that at least 30% of the student body participated in the after school athletics.

Mr. Hudson in coordination with Miss Walker, director of girls' intramurals, offers the Centralite 13 different sports, many of them being mixed. Sports range from archery and tennis in the fall; basketball, gymnastics, and bowling in the winter; to softball, track, and golf in the spring.

Last year there were 46 girls and boys participating in bowling alone, and this year the number increased to 56 students with 14 teams. Kevin Klinkman, Tracy Black, Kristi Kiger, and Steve Schmink were declared champions after competitively bowling in the league for ten weeks.

People

People—each one unique, but belonging

People. 3400 people,
All different puzzle parts
Of the pattern of the school.
People—all doing different things
Working, studying, playing,
All living differently,
Yet all for the same end—
To help themselves and to help others
The senior—outwardly self-confident
Yet afraid of the world he will Too soon move into.
The junior—exuberant, carefree
For he has another year before
The pressures of adult life set in.
The sophomore—self-conscious,
Anticipating but fearing
The world he has just entered.
The teacher—omniscient, but learning
More each day from the unlearned.
All learning from each other
To form a pattern,
A pattern of their lives.

School administrators prepare for evaluation

STUDENT DISCIPLINE is handled by Assistant Principal Billy Walker.

Working closely with students and faculty, Principal Eugene Cloncs supervised in bringing new scholastic and athletic achievements to North Central. The biggest job of the chief administrator was preparing an evaluation by the North Central Association of Universities and Secondary Schools during the fall. His administrative leadership reached out to the community where he interpreted the philosophy of the school and worked with parents for a better school-community relationship.

The duties of Assistant Principal James Ellsberry included the scheduling of classes for students, coordinating the College Night program, and assisting in the student teaching program.

Developing a positive attitude among the student body and maintaining discipline were the main responsibilities of Assistant Principal Billy Walker. Coordinating student transportation and parking, and supervising student attendance were among his other jobs.

Assistant Principal William Bugher directed such student activities as the Student Council, and coordinating events such as Homecoming, Panther Pep Week, and Career Day. He was also responsible for all convocations and served as director for the summer school program.

FINISHING HIS SECOND YEAR AT NORTH CENTRAL, Assistant Principal James Ellsberry's chief concern was to keep communication lines open between faculty and students.

HANDLING THE PROBLEMS of a school with student population of 3400 is a full-time job for Principal Eugene Cloncs.

HELPING STUDENTS PREPARE for extra-curricular activities and sponsoring Student Council events keeps Assistant Principal William Bugher on the go.

productive year

Under the guidance of the Washington Township School Board, Superintendent Dr. J. Everett Light and Assistant Superintendents Dr. Dean W. Evans and Mr. Milo Eiche examined various ways of expanding the school system. They also played a vital role in the success of the North Central Evaluation last fall.

The growth of N.C. increased the amount of paperwork involved in efficient operation of the school. The office secretaries, Mrs. Paulyne Scott, Mrs. Gladys Lindell, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, Mrs. Rosalie Nickels, and Mrs. Betty McDermott, were responsible for all correspondence between the administrators and the students, parents, and faculty.

The new secretary of the guidance office, Mrs. Betty Eib, undertook the tremendous task of completing some 1,200 college applications.

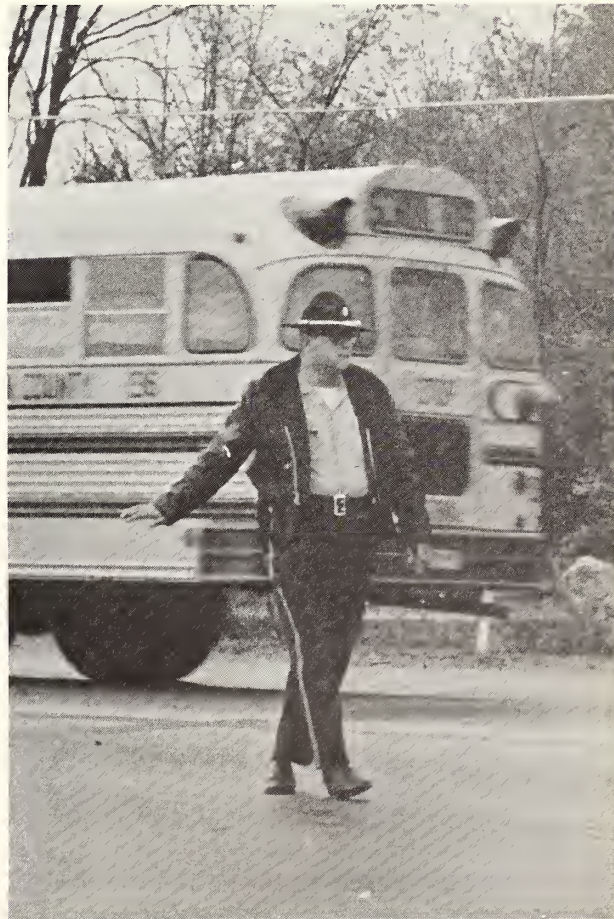

Insuring the safety of Centralites, Chief Security Officer Bill Willock and other county policemen helped alleviate the traffic situation during the day and for numerous school activities.

VIVIDLY RELATING HISTORICAL BATTLES and their strategy, Gen. Carl Debard explains the causes of World War II to his U.S. History class.

The outside interests and achievements of North Central's 167 faculty members were widely varied. Mr. Robert Prettyman was selected to serve on the Council of the National Society for Medical Research as a representative of the National Science Teacher's Association. Mr. James Jenkins served as supervisor for North Central's successful High School Bowl team. Mrs. Sue Ellen Spaulding was initiated into Sigma Tau Delta, an honorary English teachers' society, and Miss Kathy White was elected to Delta Pi Epsilon, an honorary business society.

Mr. Robert Seigal coached his tri-cycle team "Seigal's Super Cyclers" to the 1968 Tricycle Championship.

Actively participating in her community, Mrs. Emily Gemmer is on the Education Committee of the Broad Ripple Methodist Church, Parliamentarian of the Northview Triangle Club, and an adult leader in 4-H.

Two faculty members, Mr. James Duffy and Mr. James Davidson, returned from Ball State and Columbia University after doing further graduate study for a year.

Computer aids attendance procedures

With the installation of IBM equipment, the duties of Mrs. Linnea Swigart and Mrs. Gladys Buddenbaum were less complicated. The attendance office secretaries were responsible for keeping a complete record of all daily absences.

The bookstore provided a wide selection of supplies, fitting the individual needs of each student. Bookstore manager Mrs. Marguerite Farkas was responsible for all textbooks and supplies. School treasurer Mrs. Geneva Kennedy, in addition to helping Mrs. Farkas, was responsible for all the money matters at North Central. Student volunteers assisted these women during their study halls.

Nurse Dorothy Bowen was succeeded by Mrs. V. Hartmann, a former nurse from Pike. Mrs. Hartman has been in public health since 1963. Providing medical assistance to students was her main duty.

WITH THE INTRODUCTION of a new attendance-taking method using a computer, attendance office secretaries Mrs. Buddenbaum and Mrs. Swigart found their work easier.

HANDLING ALL MONEY TRANSACTIONS of the school as well as running the bookstore are the main duties of Mrs. Marguerite Farkas and Mrs. Geneva Kennedy.

Personnel help provide pleasant atmosphere

USING NEWLY-ACQUIRED library equipment, Mrs. Virginia Ball, Mrs. Pam Gilbert, Mrs. Jane Graves, and Mrs. Katherine Vance stand ready to aid students.

What went on behind the scenes at North Central was a combination of hard work and experience. The proficient custodial staff insured Centralites of a spotless building and a pleasant atmosphere in which to work.

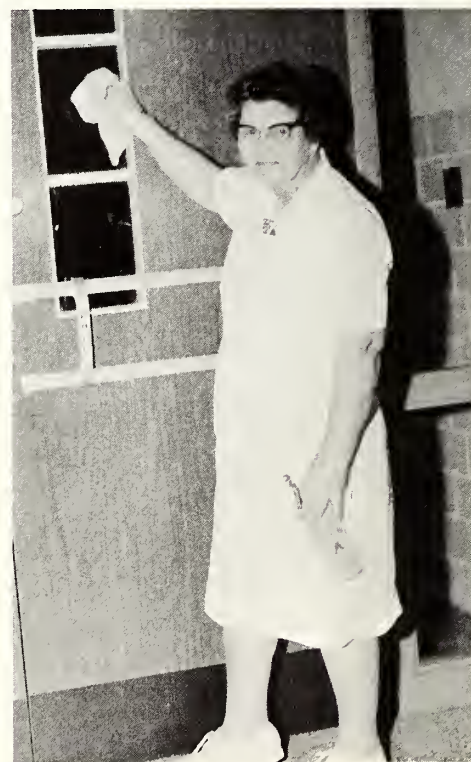

As North Central grows so does the job of the cafeteria staff. Under the direction of Mrs. Shields, the staff served approximately 3600 meals daily. Serving doughnuts provided by Key Club before school and preparing and serving food for school banquets were a few of their duties.

The audio-visual office, operated by Mrs. Tomlinson and Mrs. Buddenbaum supplies films and equipment for the school. These women also help students and teachers in the preparation of visual aids for the classroom.

An electronic device and library cards with the student's name and individual number increased the efficiency of checkout procedures in the library. The Xerox copying machine allowed students to reproduce pages of library material at a low cost. The responsibilities of the librarians increased with the addition of almost 900 new books. The approximate number of volumes now totals 20,000 currently in the library.

TECHNICIAN PATRICIA TOMLINSON distributed A-V equipment to teachers. Her secretary, Mrs. Buddenbaum, was replaced at mid-year by Mrs. Grossman.

HELPING TO KEEP THE SCHOOL CLEAN, Matron Timmie Timmons washes windows.

SUPERVISING THE MAINTENANCE of the school and its grounds is the responsibility of chief custodian Jim Kendall.

CAFETERIA MANAGER Ruth Shields and Mrs. Kathryn Sickbert prepare fried chicken for 3400 hungry students.

for last dance

Lazy days of swimming, sore feet from sightseeing, and money in the bank from summer jobs all became memories as seniors returned to North Central for their last year.

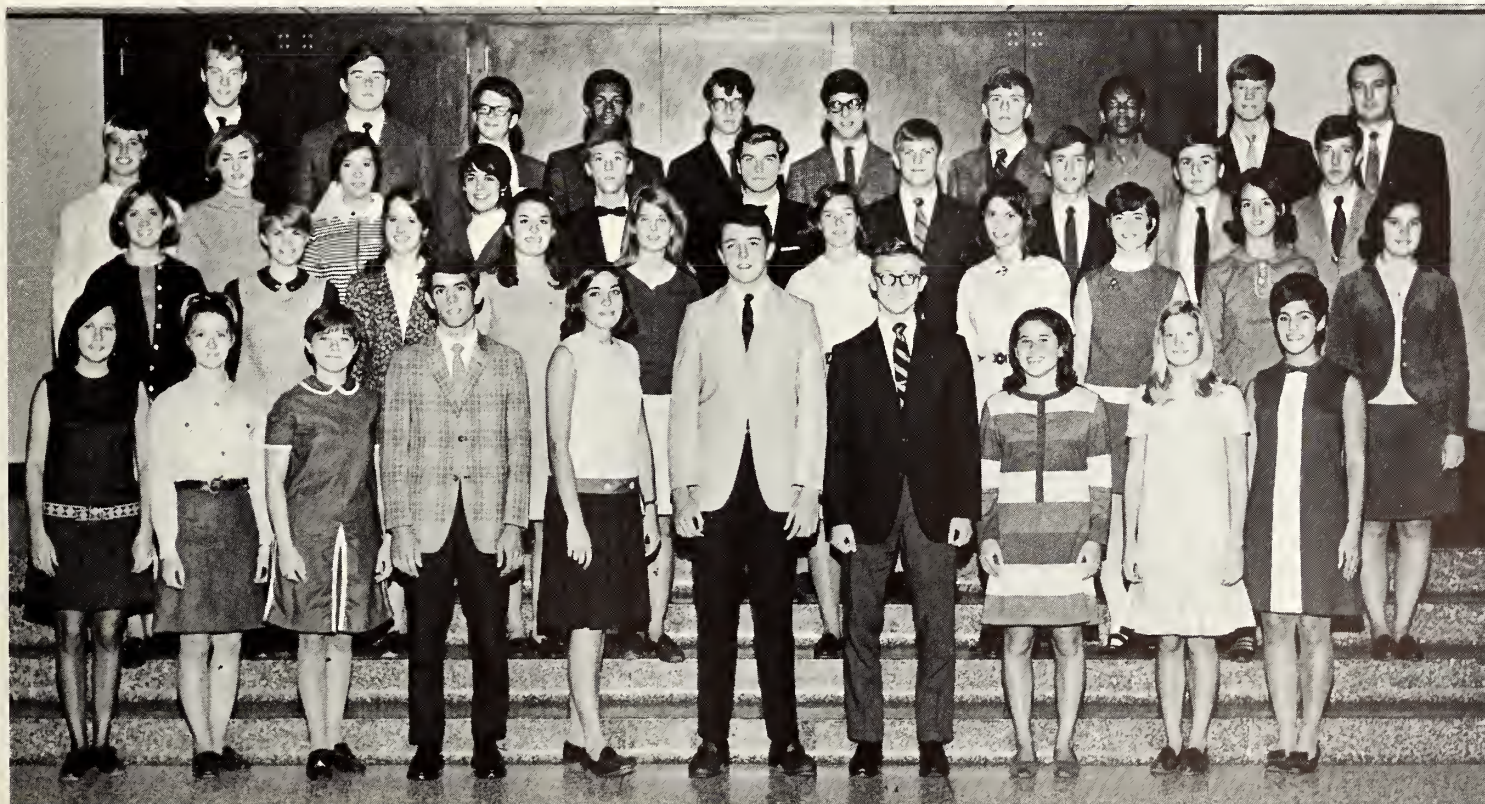

In late September, seniors selected navy and grey as their class colors. Early October afternoons were spent constructing the senior class float, "Ko-Ko Kats, Breakfast of Panthers" for Homecoming.

The last football game of the season gave seniors a chance to don their class colors, sit in a "seniors only" section of the stadium on the fifty-yard line, and attend the senior bonfire complete with hot chocolate, doughnuts, and folk music.

As the clock struck midnight, the class of '69 ushered in the new year with plans for graduation. Seniors ordered their graduation announcements and selected caps and gowns in February. Plans were also made for the Senior Talent Show, the Grad Dance, "Bourbon Street Blues", and the Senior Breakfast, "Mardi Gras" sponsored by the Triangle Club. A last Class of '69 fling was the senior party held in the gym May 2.

TEEN GUIDE COUNCIL REPRESENTATIVE Mark Harshman was responsible for the distribution of the council's "50,000 Voices" and publicity for Mayor Lugar's crime campaign.

Juniors tackle responsibility of Spec and Prom

JUNIORS CONGREGATE ON THE Student Center steps to cram for a fourth period test, discuss the upcoming football game, or just to converse with friends after 3b lunch.

Still free from senior worries of college applications and tests, juniors put all their originality and energy into a productive year.

Electing class council representatives and choosing class officers were the first responsibilities of the junior class. The class of '70 chose Jay Berger as president; Steve Gates, vice-president; Julie Thompson, secretary; and Bob Dinnsen, treasurer.

In December, juniors sponsored a mixer to collect cans for needy families for the holiday season.

In preparation for the thirteenth annual presentation of Junior Spectacular, juniors began writing scripts in late summer and early fall. Troupes were assembled for cuts in January and four acts were chosen to be presented on March 13, 14, and 15. Lisa Sewell and Dave Gipe served as coordinators for the event.

With the arrival of spring, juniors turned towards their final project of the year—the Junior Prom, to be held on May 10 at the Indiana Roof.

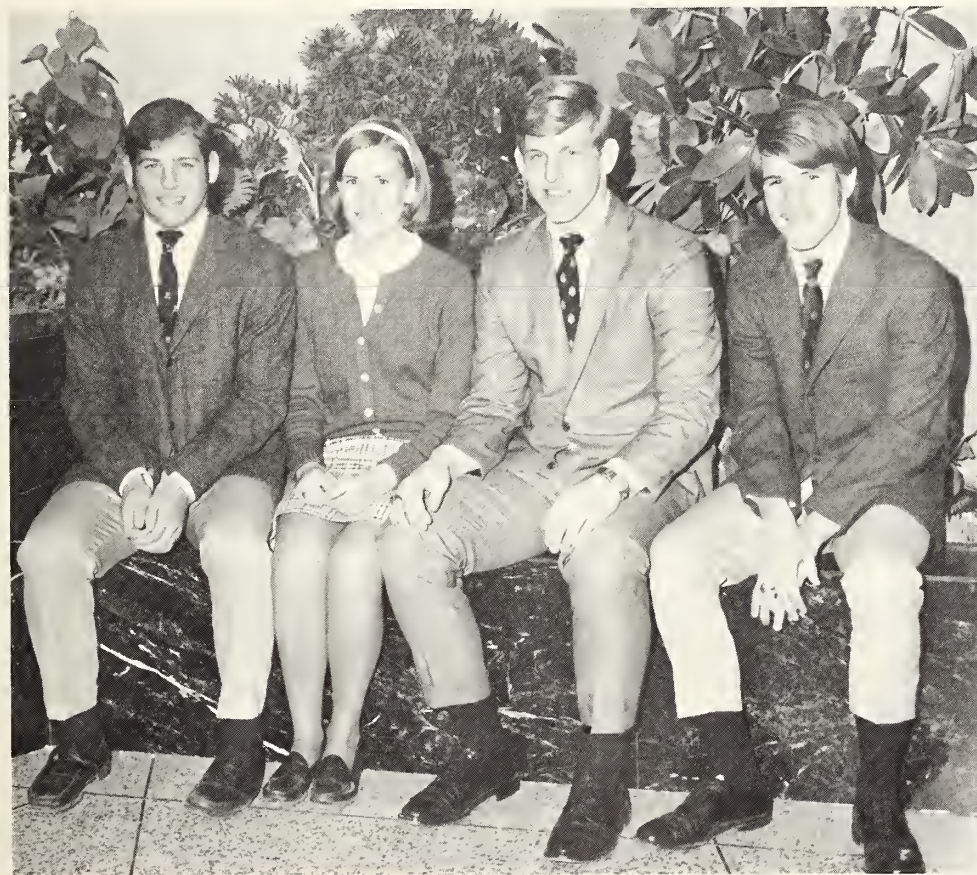

ADMIRING THEIR NEWLY ACQUIRED CLASS rings of Tahitian pearl are Sandy Vavul, Steve Lewis, and Mike McBride.

BUILDING A HUMAN PYRAMID in the gym scene for Producer Otto Feminger's movie was a simple task for students starring in "Camera-lot".

OTTO FEMINGER, decked out in his director's garb, shows his harrassment after a long day of shooting on the lot.

UNAWARE OF THE shuddering girls, the boys of "Camera-lot" continue to sing off-key in the hall at the beginning of the school day.

Something spectacular!

A musical version of a day at high school directed by the famous producer Otto Feminger was the plot of "On Location: Camera-lot" written by Sarah Dean, Kathy Ford, and Becky Borton. The problems of producing a movie in a high school became apparent as the day progressed—even the janitors noticed. In the end however, the filming was successful.

"When Your Tale's A-Dragoon", written by Sandi Baker and Peggy Moorman used pantomime to portray a story of a prince, a princess, a dragon, and a serf. The prince was to marry the princess after slaying the dragon. Overcome with fear the prince was unable to complete his task. Meanwhile, a love-stricken serf slew the dragon and won the princess' hand in marriage.

PREPARING THEMSELVES to battle the ferocious dragon in "When Your Tale's A-Dragoon" the knights gather their swords, thing brave thoughts, and then set off.

KISSING THE HAND of his maiden, the valiant knight Hank Schull bids Cherri Schutte good-by before he departs to conquer the dragon.

IN "WHEN YOUR TALE'S A-DRAGOON" John Glanton contemplates how to slay the dragon and win the princess.

Junior Spec emphasizes originality

Satirizing the negative aspects of life, "Piece of Mind", created by Richard Eaton and Chris Wright, tells the tale of a rude, grouchy, complaining old man who sees only the bad side of life. He is told of a famous doctor who can cure anything, and after visiting him, finds his only hope is a new brain. After the operation, he finally sees the beautiful things in life.

"Tell It Like It Is" is the story of the generation gap we are faced with today. Composed by Diana Moore and Marc Berkowitz, the act expresses the fact that the gap can and will be closed, but only by cooperation of both generations. The story also points out that neither generation is as bad as it seems, and shows that bridging the gap is possible.

CLOSELY EXAMINING THEIR VICTIM, Liene Karels, Ron Patterson and Steve Easley plan a cure for Mark Miller during a scene from "Piece of Mind."

DANCERS CHRISTY MALLISON, Patti Clay, Brandt Lawson, Bart Garlotte, Carol Howe, Nancy Wray, Larry Rother, Gary Sullivan, Nancy Ramey, Claudia Prosser, and Jeff Burris perform steps created by Betty Dilk, Liene Karels and Christy Mallinson.

CHOREOGRAPHERS BETTY DILK, Liene Karels, and Christy Mallinson spent many hours creating dance routines and teaching their charges to dance.

LELE BUNDLES, Tom Campbell, Harriet Schenkman, Steve Pike, Sandy Vavul, Tom Wallace, Gene Stillwell, Lynn Waddell, Mark

Smith, Ellen Breisacher, Steve Lewis, Mike McBride, Paula Van Ness, Alan Gillespie, and Anne Golbach, "Tell It Like It Is."

PROPPED UP ON THE SHOULDERS of Tom Wallace, Gene Stillwell assists Carrie Wray and Judy Allen in opposing "The Gap", played by Jimmy Beitman.

KNEELING IN PROPOSAL, Alan Gillespie sweet talks Linda McGraw to gain her hand.

Sophomores break tradition by selecting class rings in spring

IDEAS BORN IN SOPHOMORE HOMEROOMS are brought to the floor of the Sophomore Class Council where representatives discuss and vote upon their usefulness.

SOPHOMORES WORK INTENTLY WHILE constructing tokens for couples attending the Valentine's Dance which is sponsored by the Sophomore Class Council.

Surviving the first day of school was a tremendous accomplishment for 1300 sophomores. After orienting themselves and adjusting to high school, Sophomore Class Council members and officers were chosen.

Before the start of the last football game of the season, sophomores gathered in the Student Center for a get-acquainted mixer. Music was provided by The Indiana Soul Train.

Bright-colored lights and ornaments were carried out of storage as sophomores traditionally purchased and decorated the school's Christmas tree in December.

As Cupid's day arrived, the class of '71 put their "Heart and Soul" into the annual Valentine's Dance sponsored by the Sophomore Class Council.

In order to come to a general agreement on the design of class rings, sophomores deviated from past tradition and began their selection of the rings in the spring.

STRINGING LIGHTS ON THE Christmas tree requires the courage of Mike Lanham.

SOPHOMORE CLASS OFFICERS include Bobbi Malizia, secretary; Gary Lecocq, president; Margot Trusty, treasurer; and Evie Sachs, vice-president. Mr. Monroe is their sponsor.

With special appreciation to. . . .

Mr. Rod Cord, our advisor, who managed to remain calm in "dire emergencies" and to somehow keep things going.
NEWSFOTO PUBLISHING COMPANY, for deciphering our layouts and cropping marks.
Mr. Dick Kennard, our NEWSFOTO representative, for being so helpful and responsive to our wishes.
Mr. Robert Kubick of INTER-STATE STUDIOS who took our underclassmen pictures.
Mrs. Marti Ripberger and Mr. Fred Roessler for their photography assistance.
The faculty, for cooperating with staff members and being so understanding about taking pictures and collecting information.
Mr. Bill Bolander, our student teacher, who, although he was with us only a few weeks, contributed greatly to the book and to the photography staff.
The entire NORTHERNER staff, for their diligent work and good spirits.

The last piece of the pattern of the year

Has been put in place.

The future is vague—for most
Only sketchily outlined.

The Sophomore is just beginning to see how

He fits in place, and to put together
Scattered bits of childhood experiences

To create his pattern.

The Junior has many of his puzzle pieces together.

Only the most important are still missing—

The experiences and attitudes
Of his last, fleeting, high school year,
And the maturity that comes with these.

The Senior has fit in the final segment

Of the puzzle that was his childhood.
Behind him is the dependency on others.

He must now turn to self-reliance—
A difficult piece to wedge into any pattern.

But with this link, he has laid
The groundwork for a larger
pattern—

The pattern of his life.
